INFANT JOY

' I HAVE no name :
I am but two days old.'
What shall I call thee ?
' I happy am,
Joy is my name.' 5
Sweet joy befall thee !

Pretty Joy !
Sweet Joy, but two days old.
Sweet Joy I call thee :
Thou dost smile, 10
I sing the while,
Sweet joy befall thee :

W. BLAKE.

PIPING DOWN THE VALLEYS

PIPING down the valleys wild,
Piping songs of pleasant glee,
On a cloud I saw a child,
And he laughing said to me :

‘ Pipe a song about a Lamb ! ’ 5
So I piped with merry cheer.
‘ Piper, pipe that song again ; ’
So I piped : he wept to hear.

‘ Drop thy pipe, thy happy pipe ;
Sing thy songs of happy cheer : ’ 10
So I sang the same again,
While he wept with joy to hear.

‘ Piper, sit thee down and write
In a book, that all may read.’
So he vanished from my sight, 15
And I plucked a hollow reed,

And I made a rural pen,
And I stained the water clear,
And I wrote my happy songs
Every child may joy to hear. 20

W. BLAKE.

BABY

WHERE did you come from, baby dear ?
Out of the everywhere into here.

Where did you get those eyes so blue ?
Out of the sky as I came through.

What makes the light in them sparkle and spin ?

Where did you get that little tear ?
I found it waiting when I got here.

What makes your forehead so smooth and high ?
A soft hand stroked it as I went by. 10

What makes your cheek like a warm white rose ?
I saw something better than any one knows.

Whence that three-cornered smile of bliss ?
Three angels gave me at once a kiss.

Where did you get this pearly car ? 15
God spoke, and it came out to hear.

Where did you get those arms and hands ?
Love made itself into bonds and bands.

Feet, whence did you come, you darling things ?
From the same box as the cherubs' wings. 20

How did they all just come to be you ?
God thought about me, and so I grew.

But how did you come to us, you dear ?
God thought about you, and so I am here.

G. MACDONALD.

A NAKED NEW-BORN CHILD

ON parent knees, a naked new-born child,
 Weeping thou sat'st while all around thee smiled :
 So live, that sinking to thy life's last sleep,
 Calm thou may'st smile, whilst all around thee weep.

SIR W. JONES.

AROUND THE CHILD

AROUND the child bend all the three
 Sweet Graces—Faith, Hope, Charity.
 Around the man bend other faces—
 Pride, Envy, Malice, are his Graces.

W. S. LANDOR.

TO A CHILD

POUR not, my little Rose, but take
 With dimpled fingers, cool and soft,
 This posy, when thou art awake . . .
 Mamma has worn my posies oft :

This is the first I offer thee, 5
 Sweet baby ! many more shall rise
 From trembling hand, from bended knee,
 'Mid hopes and fears, 'mid doubts and sighs.

Before that hour my eyes will close ;

But grant me, Heaven, this one desire . . . 10

In mercy ! may my little Rose

Never be grafted on a briar.

W. S. LANDOR.

TO CHARLOTTE PULTENEY

TIMELY blossom, infant fair,
 Fondling of a happy pair,
 Every morn and every night
 Their solicitous delight,
 Sleeping, waking, still at ease, 5
 Pleasing, without skill to please ;
 Little gossip, blithe and hale,
 Tattling many a broken tale,
 Singing many a tuneless song,
 Lavish of a heedless tongue ; 10
 Simple maiden, void of art,
 Babbling out the very heart,
 Yet abandoned to thy will,
 Yet imagining no ill,
 Yet too innocent to blush ; 15
 Like the linnet in the bush
 To the mother-linnet's note
 Moduling her slender throat ;
 Chirping forth thy petty joys,
 Wanton in the change of toys, 20

Like the linnet green, in May
 Flitting to each bloomy spray ;
 Wearied then and glad of rest,
 Like the linnet in the nest :—
 This thy present happy lot, 25
 This, in time will be forgot :
 Other pleasures, other cares,
 Ever-busy Time prepares ;
 And thou shalt in thy daughter see,
 This picture, once, resembled thee. 30

A. PHILIPS.

TO AN INFANT

AH ! cease thy tears and sobs, my little Life !
 I did but snatch away the unclasped knife :
 Some safer toy will soon arrest thine eye,
 And to quick laughter change this peevish cry !
 Poor stumbler on the rocky coast of Woe, 5
 Tutored by Pain each source of pain to know !
 Alike the foodful fruit and scorching fire
 Awake thy eager grasp and young desire ;
 Alike the Good, the Ill offend thy sight,
 And rouse the stormy sense of shrill Affright ! 10
 Untaught, yet wise ! 'mid all thy brief alarms
 Thou closely clingest to thy Mother's arms,
 Nestling thy little face in that fond breast
 Whose anxious heavings lull thee to thy rest !

Man's breathing Miniature ! thou mak'st me sigh—
 A Babe art thou—and such a Thing am I ! 16
 To anger rapid and as soon appeased,
 For trifles mourning and by trifles pleased,
 Break Friendship's mirror with a tetchy blow,
 Yet snatch what coals of fire on Pleasure's altar glow ! 20

O thou that rearest with celestial aim
 The future Seraph in my mortal frame,
 Thrice holy Faith ! whatever thorns I meet
 As on I totter with unpractised feet, 24
 Still let me stretch my arms and cling to thee,
 Meek nurse of souls through their long Infancy !

S. T. COLERIDGE.

CHARACTERISTICS OF A CHILD THREE YEARS OLD

LOVING she is, and tractable, though wild ;
 And Innocence hath privilege in her
 To dignify arch looks and laughing eyes ;
 And feats of cunning ; and the pretty round
 Of trespasses, affected to provoke 5
 Mock-chastisement and partnership in play.
 And, as a faggot sparkles on the hearth,
 Not less if unattended and alone
 Than when both young and old sit gathered round

And take delight in its activity ; 10
 Even so this happy Creature of herself
 Is all-sufficient ; solitude to her
 Is blithe society, who fills the air
 With gladness and involuntary songs.
 Light are her sallies as the tripping fawn's 15
 Forth-startled from the fern where she lay couched ;
 Unthought-of, unexpected, as the stir
 Of the soft breeze ruffling the meadow-flowers,
 Or from before it chasing wantonly
 The many-coloured images imprest 20
 Upon the bosom of a placid lake.

W. WORDSWORTH.

TO H[ARTLEY] C[OLERIDGE]

SIX YEARS OLD

O THOU ! whose fancies from afar are brought ;
 Who of thy words dost make a mock apparel,
 And fittest to unutterable thought
 The breeze-like motion and the self-born carol
 Thou faery voyager ! that dost float 5
 In such clear water, that thy boat
 May rather seem
 To brood on air than on an earthly stream ;
 Suspended in a stream as clear as sky,
 Where earth and heaven do make one imagery ;

O blessèd vision ! happy child !
Thou art so exquisitely wild,
I think of thee with many fears
For what may be thy lot in future years. 11

I thought of times when Pain might be thy guest,
Lord of thy house and hospitality ; 16
And Grief, uneasy lover ! never rest
But when she sate within the touch of thee.

O too industrious folly !

O vain and causeless melancholy ! 20

Nature will either end thee quite ;
Or, lengthening out thy season of delight,
Preserve for thee, by individual right,
A young lamb's heart among the full-grown flocks.

What hast thou to do with sorrow, 25

Or the injuries of to-morrow ?

Thou art a dew-drop, which the morn brings forth,

Ill fitted to sustain unkindly shocks,

Or to be trailed along the soiling earth ;

A gem that glitters while it lives, 30

And no forewarning gives ;

But, at the touch of wrong, without a strife

Slips in a moment out of life.

W. WORDSWORTH.

A PORTRAIT

One name is Elizabeth.—BEN JONSON.

I WILL paint her as I see her.

Ten times have the lilies blown,
Since she looked upon the sun.

And her face is lily-clear,

Lily-shaped, and dropped in duty
To the law of its own beauty. 5

Oval cheeks encoloured faintly,

Which a trail of golden hair
Keeps from fading off to air :

And a forehead fair and saintly, 10

Which two blue eyes undershine,
Like meek prayers before a shrine.

Face and figure of a child,—

Though too calm, you think, and tender,
For the childhood you would lend her. 15

Yet child-simple, undefiled,

Frank, obedient,—waiting still
On the turnings of your will.

Moving light, as all young things,

As young birds, or early wheat, 20
When the wind blows over it.

Only, free from flutterings

Of loud mirth that scorneth measure—
Taking love for her chief pleasure.

- Choosing pleasures, for the rest, 25
Which come softly—just as she,
When she nestles at your knee.
- Quiet talk she liketh best,
In a bower of gentle looks,—
Watering flowers, or reading books. 30
- And her voice, it murmurs lowly,
As a silver stream may run,
Which yet feels, you feel, the sun.
- And her smile, it seems half holy,
As if drawn from thoughts more far 35
Than our common jestings are.
- And if any poet knew her,
He would sing of her with falls
Used in lovely madrigals.
- And if any painter drew her, 40
He would paint her unaware
With a halo round the hair.
- And if reader read the poem,
He would whisper—‘ You have done a
Consecrated little Una.’ 45
- And a dreamer (did you show him
That same picture) would exclaim,
‘ ’Tis my angel, with a name !’
- And a stranger, when he sees her
In the street even—smileth stilly, 50
Just as you would at a lily.

And all voices that address her,
 Soften, sleeken every word,
 As if speaking to a bird.

And all fancies yearn to cover 55
 The hard earth whereon she passes,
 With the thymy scented grasses.

And all hearts do pray, 'God love her!'—
 Aye, and always, in good sooth,
 We may all be sure HE DOTHT. 60

E. B. BROWNING.

TO A CHILD

DEAR child! how radiant on thy mother's knee,
 With merry-making eyes and jocund smiles,
 Thou gazest at the painted tiles,
 Whose figures grace,
 With many a grotesque form and face, 5
 The ancient chimney of thy nursery!
 The lady with the gay macaw,
 The dancing girl, the grave bashaw
 With bearded lip and chin;
 And, leaning idly o'er his gate, 10
 Beneath the imperial fan of state,
 The Chinese mandarin.

With what a look of proud command
 Thou shakest in thy little hand
 The coral rattle with its silver bells                   15
 Making a merry tune !
 Thousands of years in Indian seas
 That coral grew, by slow degrees,
 Until some deadly and wild monsoon
 Dashed it on Coromandel's sand !                   20

Those silver bells
 Reposed of yore,
 As shapeless ore,
 Far down in the deep-sunken wells
 Of darksome mines,                   25
 In some obscure and sunless place
 Beneath huge Chimborazo's base,
 Or Potosi's o'erhanging pines !

And thus for thee, O little child,
 Through many a danger and escape,                   30
 The tall ships passed the stormy cape ;
 For thee in foreign lands remote,
 Beneath a burning tropic clime,
 The Indian peasant, chasing the wild goat,
 Himself as swift and wild,                   35
 In falling clutched the frail arbut,                   35
 The fibres of whose shallow root,
 Uplifted from the soil, betrayed
 The silver veins beneath it laid,
 The buried treasures of the miser Time.           40

But, lo ! thy door is left ajar !
 Thou hearest footsteps from afar !
 And, at the sound,
 Thou turnest round
 With quick and questioning eyes, 45
 Like one who, in a foreign land,
 Beholds on every hand
 Some source of wonder and surprise !
 And, restlessly, impatiently,
 Thou strivest, strugglest, to be free. 50
 The four walls of thy nursery
 Are now like prison walls to thee.
 No more thy mother's smiles,
 No more the painted tiles,
 Delight thee, nor the playthings on the floor, 55
 That won thy little beating heart before ;
 Thou strugglest for the open door.

Through these once solitary halls
 Thy pattering footstep falls. 60
 The sound of thy merry voice
 Makes the old walls
 Jubilant, and they rejoice
 With the joy of thy young heart,
 O'er the light of whose gladness
 No shadows of sadness 65
 From the sombre background of memory start.

Once, ah, once, within these walls,
 One whom memory oft recalls,

The Father of his Country, dwelt.
 And yonder meadows broad and damp 70
 The fires of the besieging camp
 Encircled with a burning belt.
 Up and down these echoing stairs,
 Heavy with the weight of cares,
 Sounded his majestic tread ; 75
 Yes, within this very room
 Sat he in those hours of gloom,
 Weary both in heart and head.

But what are these grave thoughts to thee ?
 Out, out ! into the open air ! 80
 Thy only dream is liberty,
 Thou carest little how or where.
 I see thee eager at thy play,
 Now shouting to the apples on the tree,
 With cheeks as round and red as they ; 85
 And now among the yellow stalks,
 Among the flowering shrubs and plants,
 As restless as the bee.
 Along the garden walks
 The tracks of thy small carriage-wheels I trace ;
 And see at every turn how they efface 91
 Whole villages of sand-roofed tents,
 That rise like golden domes
 Above the cavernous and secret homes
 Of wandering and nomadic tribes of ants. 95

Ah, cruel little Tamerlane,
 Who, with thy dreadful reign,
 Dost persecute and overwhelm
 These hapless Troglodytes of thy realm !

What ! tired already ! with those suppliant looks,
 And voice more beautiful than a poet's books, 101
 Or murmuring sound of water as it flows,
 Thou comest back to parley with repose !
 This rustie seat in the old apple-tree,
 With its o'erhanging golden canopy 105
 Of leaves illuminate with autumnal hues,
 And shining with the argent light of dews,
 Shall for a season be our place of rest.
 Beneath us, like an oriole's pendent nest,
 From which the laughing birds have taken wing,
 By thee abandoned, hangs thy vacant swing. 111
 Dream-like the waters of the river gleam ;
 A sailless vessel drops adown the stream,
 And like it, to a sea as wide and deep,
 Thou driftest gently down the tides of sleep. 115

O child ! O new-born denizen
 Of life's great city ! on thy head
 The glory of the morn is shed,
 Like a celestial benison !
 Here at the portal thou dost stand, 120
 And with thy little hand

Thou openest the mysterious gate
Into the future's undiscovered land.
I see its valves expand,
As at the touch of Fate ! 125
Into those realms of love and hate,
Into that darkness blank and drear,
By some prophetic feeling taught,
I launch the bold, adventurous thought,
Freighted with hope and fear ; 130
As upon subterranean streams,
In caverns unexplored and dark,
Men sometimes launch a fragile bark,
Laden with flickering fire,
And watch its swift-receding beams, 135
Until at length they disappear,
And in the distant dark expire.

By what astrology of fear or hope
Dare I to cast thy horoscope !
Like the new moon thy life appears ; 140
A little strip of silver light,
And widening outward into night
The shadowy disk of future years ;
And yet upon its outer rim,
A luminous circle, faint and dim, 145
And scarcely visible to us here,
Rounds and completes the perfect sphere ;
A prophecy and intimation,
A pale and feeble adumbration,

Of the great world of light that lies 150
 Behind all human destinies.
 Ah! if thy fate, with anguish fraught,
 Should be to wet the dusty soil
 With the hot tears and sweat of toil,—
 To struggle with imperious thought, 155
 Until the overburdened brain,
 Weary with labour, faint with pain,
 Like a jarred pendulum, retain
 Only its motion, not its power,—
 Remember, in that perilous hour, 160
 When most afflicted and oppressed,
 From labour there shall come forth rest.

And if a more auspicious fate
 On thy advancing steps await,
 Still let it ever be thy pride 165
 To linger by the labourer's side ;
 With words of sympathy or song
 To cheer the dreary march along
 Of the great army of the poor,
 O'er desert sand, o'er dangerous moor. 170
 Nor to thyself the task shall be Without reward ; for thou shalt learn
 The wisdom early to discern
 True beauty in utility ;
 As great Pythagoras of yore, 175
 Standing beside the blacksmith's door,
 And hearing the hammers, as they smote
 The anvils with a different note,

Stole from the varying tones that hung
 Vibrant on every iron tongue, 180
 The secret of the sounding wire,
 And formed the seven-chorded lyre.

Enough! I will not play the Seer;
 I will no longer strive to ope
 The mystic volume, where appear 185
 The herald Hope, forerunning Fear,
 And Fear, the pursuivant of Hope.
 Thy destiny remains untold;
 For, like Aecstes' shaft of old,
 The swift thought kindles as it flies, 190
 And burns to ashes in the skies.

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE BAREFOOT BOY

BLESSINGS on thee, little man,
 Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan!
 With thy turned-up pantaloons,
 And thy merry whistled tunes;
 With thy red lip, redder still 5
 Kissed by strawberries on the hill;
 With the sunshine on thy face,
 Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace;

From my heart I give thee joy,—
 I was once a barefoot boy! 10
 Prince thou art,—the grown-up man
 Only is republican.
 Let the million-dollared ride!
 Barefoot, trudging at his side,
 Thou hast more than he can buy 15
 In the reach of ear and eye,—
 Outward sunshine, inward joy:
 Blessings on thee, barefoot boy!

Oh for boyhood's painless play,
 Sleep that wakes in laughing day, 20
 Health that mocks the doctor's rules,
 Knowledge never learned of schools,
 Of the wild bee's morning chase,
 Of the wild-flower's time and place,
 Flight of fowl and habitude 25
 Of the tenants of the wood;
 How the tortoise bears his shell,
 How the woodchuck digs his cell,
 And the ground-mole sinks his well;
 How the robin feeds her young, 30
 How the oriole's nest is hung;
 Where the whitest lilies blow,
 Where the freshest berries grow,
 Where the ground-nut trails its vine,
 Where the wood-grape's clusters shine; 35
 Of the black wasp's cunning way,
 Mason of his walls of clay,

And the architectural plans
 Of grey hornet artisans !
 For, eschewing books and tasks, 40
 Nature answers all he asks ;
 Hand in hand with her he walks,
 Face to face with her he talks,
 Part and parcel of her joy.—
 Blessings on the barefoot boy ! 45

Oh for boyhood's time of June,
 Crowding years in one brief moon,
 When all things I heard or saw,
 Me, their master, waited for.
 I was rich in flowers and trees, 50
 Humming-birds and honey-bees ;
 For my sport the squirrel played,
 Plied the snouted mole his spade ;
 For my taste the blackberry cone
 Purpled over hedge and stone ; 55
 Laughed the brook for my delight
 Through the day and through the night,
 Whispering at the garden wall,
 Talked with me from fall to fall ;
 Mine the sand-rimmed pickerel pond, 60
 Mine the walnut slopes beyond,
 Mine, on bending orchard trees,
 Apples of Hesperides !
 Still as my horizon grew,
 Larger grew my riches too ; 65
 All the world I saw or knew

Seemed a complex Chinese toy,
Fashioned for a barefoot boy !

Oh for festal dainties spread,
Like my bowl of milk and bread ; 70
Pewter spoon and bowl of wood,
On the door-stone, grey and rude !
O'er me, like a regal tent,
Cloudy-ribbed, the sunset bent,
Purple-curtained, fringed with gold, 75
Looped in many a wind-swung fold ;
While for music came the play
Of the pied frogs' orchestra ;
And, to light the noisy choir,
Lit the fly his lamp of fire. 80
I was monarch : pomp and joy
Waited on the barefoot boy !

Cheerily, then, my little man,
Live and laugh, as boyhood can !
Though the flinty slopes be hard, 85
Stubble-speared the new-mown sward,
Every morn shall lead thee through
Fresh baptisms of the dew ;
Every evening from thy feet
Shall the cool wind kiss the heat : 90
All too soon these feet must hide
In the prison cells of pride,
Lose the freedom of the sod,
Like a colt's for work be shod,

Made to tread the mills of toil, 95
 Up and down in ceaseless moil :
 Happy if their track be found
 Never on forbidden ground ;
 Happy if they sink not in
 Quick and treacherous sands of sin. 100
 Ah ! that thou couldst know thy joy,
 Ere it passes, barefoot boy !

J. G. WHITTIER.

HOUSEHOLD GODS

YE little household gods, that make
 My heart leap lighter with your play,
 And never let it sink or ache,
 Unless you are too far away ;

Eight years have flown, and never yet 5
 One day has risen up between
 The kisses of my earlier pet,
 And few the hours he was not seen.

How can I call to you from Rome ?
 Will mamma teach what babbo said ? 10
 Have ye not heard him talk at home
 About the city of the dead ?

Marvellous tales will babbo tell,
 If you don't clasp his throat too tight,
 Tales which you, Arnold, will love well, 15
 Though Julia's cheek turns pale with fright.

How, swimming o'er the Tiber, Clelia
 Headed the rescued virgin train ;
 And, loftier virtue ! how Cornelia
 Lived when her two brave sons were slain. 20

This is my birthday : may ye waltz
 Till mamma cracks her best guitar !
 Yours are true pleasures ; those are false
 We wise ones follow from afar.

What shall I bring you ? would you like 25
 Urn, image, glass, red, yellow, blue,
 Stricken by Time, who soon must strike
 As deep the heart that beats for you.

W. S. LANDOR.

CHILDREN

COME to me, O ye children !
 For I hear you at your play,
 And the questions that perplexed me
 Have vanished quite away.

Ye open the eastern windows, 5
That look towards the sun,
Where thoughts are singing swallows
And the brooks of morning run.

In your hearts are the birds and the sunshine,
In your thoughts the brooklet's flow, 10
But in mine is the wind of Autumn,
And the first fall of the snow.

Ah! what would the world be to us
If the children were no more?
We should dread the desert behind us 15
Worse than the dark before.

What the leaves are to the forest,
With light and air for food,
Ere their sweet and tender juices
Have been hardened into wood, 20

That to the world are children;
Through them it feels the glow
Of a brighter and sunnier climate
Than reaches the trunks below.

Come to me, O ye children! 25
And whisper in my ear
What the birds and the winds are singing
In your sunny atmosphere.

For what are all our contrivings,
 And the wisdom of our books, 30
 When compared with your caresses,
 And the gladness of your looks ?

Ye are better than all the ballads
 That ever were sung or said ;
 For ye are living poems, 35
 And all the rest are dead.

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

PARENTAL RECOLLECTIONS

A CHILD'S a plaything for an hour ;
 Its pretty tricks we try
 For that or for a longer space ;
 Then tire, and lay it by.

But I knew one, that to itself 5
 All seasons could control ;
 That would have mocked the sense of pain
 Out of a grievèd soul.

Thou straggler into loving arms,
 Young climber up of knees, 10
 When I forget thy thousand ways,
 Then life and all shall cease.

C. LAMB.

UNTO US A SON IS GIVEN

GIVEN, not lent,
 And not withdrawn—once sent,
 This Infant of mankind, this One,
 Is still the little welcome Son.
 New every year, 5
 New born and newly dear,
 He comes with tidings and a song,
 The ages long, the ages long ;
 Even as the cold
 Keen winter grows not old, 10
 As childhood is so fresh, foreseen,
 And spring in the familiar green.
 Sudden as sweet
 Come the expected feet.
 All joy is young, and new all art, 15
 And He, too, Whom we have by heart.

ALICE MEYNELL.

TO HIS SAVIOUR, A CHILD ; A PRESENT,
 BY A CHILD

Go, pretty child, and bear this flower
 Unto thy little Saviour ;
 And tell him, by that bud now blown,
 He is the Rose of Sharon known :
 When thou hast said so, stick it there 5
 Upon his bib or stomacher ;

And tell him, for good handsel too,
 That thou hast brought a whistle new,
 Made of a clean straight oaten reed,
 To charm his eries at time of need ;                    10
 Tell him, for eoral thou hast none,
 But if thou hadst, he should have one ;
 But poor thou art, and known to be
 Even as moneyless as he.
 Lastly, if thou canst win a kiss                    15
 From those mellifluous lips of his ;
 Then never take a second on,
 To spoil the first impression.

R. HERRICK.

‘ EX ORE INFANTIUM ’

LITTLE Jesus, wast Thou shy
 Once, and just so small as I ?
 And what did it feel like to be
 Out of Heaven, and just like me ?
 Didst Thou sometimes think of there,                    5
 And ask where all the angels were ?
 I should think that I would cry
 For my house all made of sky ;
 I would look about the air,
 And wonder where my angels were ;                    10
 And at waking ’twould distress me—
 Not an angel there to dress me !

Hadst Thou ever any toys,
 Like us little girls and boys ?
 And didst Thou play in Heaven with all 15
 The angels that were not too tall,
 With stars for marbles ? Did the things
 Play Can you see me ? through their wings ?
 And did Thy Mother let Thee spoil
 Thy robes, with playing on our soil ? 20
 How nice to have them always new
 In Heaven, because 'twas quite clean blue !

Didst Thou kneel at night to pray,
 And didst Thou join thy hands, this way ?
 And did they tire sometimes, being young, 25
 And make the prayer seem very long ?
 And dost Thou like it best, that we Should join our hands to pray to Thee ?
 I used to think, before I knew,
 The prayer not said unless we do. 30
 And did Thy Mother at the night
 Kiss Thee, and fold the clothes in right ?
 And didst Thou feel quite good in bed,
 Kissed, and sweet, and thy prayers said ?

Thou canst not have forgotten all 35
 That it feels like to be small :
 And Thou know'st I cannot pray
 To Thee in my father's way—
 When Thou wast so little, say,
 Couldst Thou talk Thy Father's way ?— 40

So, a little Child, come down
 And hear a child's tongue like Thy own ;
 Take me by the hand and walk,
 And listen to my baby-talk.
 To Thy Father show my prayer 45
 (He will look, Thou art so fair),
 And say : ' O Father, I, thy Son,
 Bring the prayer of a little one.'

And He will smile, that children's tongue
 Has not changed since Thou wast young ! 50

F. THOMPSON.

OF SUCH IS THE KINGDOM

LOVE, Thou art absolute sole Lord
 Of life and death. To prove the word,
 We'll now appeal to none of all
 Those Thy old soldiers, great and tall,
 Ripe men of martyrdom, that could reach down 5
 With strong arms their triumphant crown :
 Such as could with lusty breath
 Speak loud into the face of death
 Their great Lord's glorious name ; to none 9
 Of those whose spacious bosoms spread a throne
 For Love at large to fill ; spare blood and sweat :
 And see Him take a private seat,
 Making His mansion in the mild
 And milky soul of a soft child.

R. CRASHAW.

THE LAMB

LITTLE Lamb, who made thee ?
 Dost thou know who made thee ?
 Gave thee life, and bid thee feed,
 By the stream and o'er the mead ;
 Gave thee clothing of delight, 5
 Softest clothing, woolly, bright ;
 Gave thee such a tender voice,
 Making all the vales rejoice ?
 Little Lamb, who made thee ?
 Dost thou know who made thee ? 10

Little Lamb, I'll tell thee,
 Little Lamb, I'll tell thee :
 He is callèd by thy name,
 For He calls Himself a Lamb.
 He is meek, and He is mild ; 15
 He became a little child.
 I a child, and thou a lamb,
 We are callèd by His name.
 Little Lamb, God bless thee !
 Little Lamb, God bless thee ! 20

W. BLAKE.

HOLY THURSDAY

'Twas on a Holy Thursday, their innocent faces clean,
The children walking two and two, in red and blue and green,
Grey-headed beadles walked before, with wands as white as snow,
Till into the high dome of Paul's they like Thames' waters flow.

O what a multitude they seemed, these flowers of London town ! 5
Seated in companies they sit with radiance all their own.
The hum of multitudes was there, but multitudes of lambs,
Thousands of little boys and girls raising their innocent hands.

Now like a mighty wind they raise to Heaven the voice of song,
Or like harmonious thunderings the seats of Heaven
among. 10
Beneath them sit the aged men, wise guardians of the poor ;
Then cherish pity, lest you drive an angel from your door.

W. BLAKE.

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL

MORNING, evening, noon and night,
'Praise God,' sang Theocrite.

Then to his poor trade he turned
By which the daily meal was earned.

Hard he laboured, long and well ;
O'er his work the boy's curls fell : 5

But ever, at each period,
He stopped and sang, 'Praise God.'

Then back again his curls he threw,
And cheerful turned to work anew. 10

Said Blaise, the listening monk, 'Well done ;
I doubt not thou art heard, my son :

As well as if thy voice to-day
Were praising God, the Pope's great way.

This Easter Day, the Pope at Rome
Praises God from Peter's dome.' 15

Said Theocrite, 'Would God that I
Might praise Him, that great way, and die !'

Night passed, day shone,
And Theocrite was gone. 20

With God a day endures alway,
A thousand years are but a day.

God said in Heaven, ' Nor day nor night
Now brings the voice of my delight.'

Then Gabriel, like a rainbow's birth,                    25
Spread his wings and sank to earth ;

Entered in flesh, the empty cell,
Lived there, and played the craftsman well ;

And morning, evening, noon and night,
Praised God in place of Theocrite.                    30

And from a boy, to youth he grew :
The man put off the stripling's hue :

The man matured and fell away
Into the season of decay :

And ever o'er the trade he bent,                    35
And ever lived on earth content.

(He did God's will ; to him, all one
If on the earth or in the sun.)

God said, ' A praise is in mine ear ;
There is no doubt in it, no fear :                    40

So sing old worlds, and so
New worlds that from my footstool go.

Clearer loves sound other ways :
I miss my little human praise.'

Then forth sprang Gabriel's wings, off fell 45
The flesh disguise, remained the cell.

'Twas Easter Day : he flew to Rome,
And paused above St. Peter's dome.

In the tiring-room close by
The great outer gallery, 50

With his holy vestments dight,
Stood the new Pope, Theocrite :

And all his past career
Came back upon him clear,

Since when, a boy, he plied his trade, 55
Till on his life the sickness weighed ;

And in his cell, when death drew near,
An angel in a dream brought cheer :

And rising from the sickness drear
He grew a priest, and now stood here. 60

To the East with praise he turned,
And on his sight the angel burned.

' I bore thee from thy craftsman's cell,
And set thee here ; I did not well.

Vainly I left my angel-sphere, 65
Vain was thy dream of many a year.

Thy voice's praise seemed weak ; it dropped—
Creation's chorus stopped !

Go back and praise again
The early way, while I remain. 70

With that weak voice of our disdain,
Take up Creation's pausing strain.

Back to the cell and poor employ :
Become the craftsman and the boy !'

Theocrite grew old at home ; 75
A new Pope dwelt in Peter's dome.

One vanished as the other died :
They sought God side by side.

R. BROWNING.

THE LITTLE BLACK BOY

My mother bore me in the southern wild,
 And I am black, but O! my soul is white;
 White as an angel is the English child,
 But I am black, as if bereaved of light.

My mother taught me underneath a tree, 5
 And, sitting down before the heat of day,
 She took me on her lap and kissèd me,
 And, pointing to the east, began to say:

' Look on the rising sun,—there God does live,
 And gives His light, and gives His heat away; 10
 And flowers and trees and beasts and men receive Comfort in morning, joy in the noonday.

' And we are put on earth a little space,
 That we may learn to bear the beams of love;
 And these black bodies and this sunburnt face 15
 Is but a cloud, and like a shady grove.

' For when our souls have learned the heat to bear,
 The cloud will vanish; we shall hear His voice, Saying: "Come out from the grove, My love and care,
 And round My golden tent like lambs rejoice." ' 20

Thus did my mother say, and kissèd me;
 And thus I say to little English boy,
 When I from black and he from white cloud free,
 And round the tent of God like lambs we joy,

I'll shade him from the heat, till he can bear 25
 To lean in joy upon our Father's knee ;
 And then I'll stand and stroke his silver hair,
 And be like him, and he will then love me.

GRACES FOR CHILDREN

I

WHAT God gives, and what we take,
 'Tis a gift for Christ His sake ;
 Be the meal of beans and peas,
 God be thanked for those and these ;
 Have we flesh, or have we fish, 5
 All are fragments from His dish.
 He His Church save, and the King,
 And our peace here, like a spring,
 Make it ever flourishing.

II

HERE a little child I stand,
 Heaving up my either hand ;
 Cold as paddocks though they be,
 Here I lift them up to Thee,
 For a benison to fall 5
 On our meat, and on us all.

R. HERRICK.

ON A DEAD CHILD

PERFECT little body, without fault or stain on thee,
 With promise of strength and manhood full and fair !

Though cold and stark and bare,
 The bloom and the charm of life doth awhile remain on thee. 4

Thy mother's treasure wert thou ;—alas ! no longer
 To visit her heart with wondrous joy ; to be Thy father's pride ;—ah, he Must gather his faith together, and his strength make stronger.

To me, as I move thee now in the last duty,
 Dost thou with a turn or gesture anon respond ;
 Startling my fancy fond 11
 With a chance attitude of the head, a freak of beauty.

Thy hand clasps, as 'twas wont, my finger, and holds it :
 But the grasp is the clasp of Death, heartbreaking and stiff ;

Yet feels to my hand as if 15
 'Twas still thy will, thy pleasure and trust that enfolds it.

So I lay thee there, thy sunken eyelids closing,—
 Go lie thou there in thy coffin, thy last little bed !—
 Propping thy wise, sad head,
 Thy firm, pale hands across thy chest disposing. 20

So quiet ! doth the change content thee ?—Death, whither hath he taken thee ?

To a world, do I think, that rights the disaster of this ?

The vision of which I miss,
Who weep for the body, and wish but to warm thee and awaken thee ?

Ah ! little at best can all our hopes avail us      25
To lift this sorrow, or cheer us, when in the dark,
Unwilling, alone we embark,
And the things we have seen and have known and have heard of, fail us.

R. BRIDGES.

ON MY FIRST SON

FAREWELL, thou child of my right hand, and joy ;
My sin was too much hope of thee, loved boy ;
Seven years tho' wert lent to me, and I thee pay,
Exacted by thy fate, on the just day.
Oh ! could I lose all father, now ! for why      5
Will man lament the state he should envy ?
To have so soon 'scaped world's and flesh's rage,
And, if no other misery, yet age !
Rest in soft peace, and, asked, say here doth lie
Ben Jonson his best piece of poetry ;      10
For whose sake, henceforth, all his vows be such,
As what he loves may never like too much.

BEN JONSON.

ON MY FIRST DAUGHTER

HERE lies, to each her parents' ruth,
 Mary, the daughter of their youth ;
 Yet all heaven's gifts being heaven's due,
 It makes the father less to rue.
 At six months' end she parted hence 5
 With safety of her innocence ;
 Whose soul heaven's Queen, whose name she bears,
 In comfort of her mother's tears,
 Hath placed amongst her virgin-train :
 Where, while that, severed, doth remain, 10
 This grave partakes the fleshly birth ;
 Which cover lightly, gentle earth !

BEN JONSON.

AN EPITAPH ON SALATHIEL PAVY

(A CHILD OF QUEEN ELIZABETH'S CHAPEL)

WEEP with me, all you that read
 This little story ;
 And know, for whom a tear you shed,
 Death's self is sorry.
 'Twas a child, that so did thrive 5
 In grace and feature,
 As Heaven and Nature seemed to strive
 Which owned the creature.

Years he numbered scarce thirteen,
 When Fates turned cruel ; 10
 Yet three filled zodiaes had he been
 The stage's jewel ;
 And did act, what now we moan,
 Old men so duly,
 As sooth, the Pareae thought him one, 15
 He played so truly.

So, by error, to his fate
 They all consented ;
 But, viewing him since (alas, too late !),
 They have repented ; 20
 And have sought, to give new birth,
 In baths to steep him :
 But, being so much too good for earth,
 Heaven vows to keep him.

BEN JONSON.

UPON A CHILD THAT DIED

HERE she lies, a pretty bud,
 Lately made of flesh and blood :
 Who as soon fell fast asleep
 As her little eyes did peep.
 Give her strewings, but not stir 5
 The earth that lightly covers her.

R. HERRICK.

UPON A CHILD

HERE a pretty baby lies
 Sung asleep with lullabies ;
 Pray be silent, and not stir
 The easy earth that covers her.

R. HERRICK.

ON MY DEAR SON

CAN I, who have for others oft compiled
 The songs of death, forget my sweetest child,
 Which, like a flower crushed, with a blast is dead,
 And ere full time hangs down his smiling head,
 Expecting with clear hope to live anew, 5
 Among the angels fed with heavenly dew ?
 We have this sign of joy, that many days,
 While on the earth his struggling spirit stays,
 The name of Jesus in his mouth contains,
 His only food, his sleep, his ease from pains. 10
 O may that sound be rooted in my mind,
 Of which in him such strong effect I find.
 Dear Lord, receive my son, whose winning love
 To me was like a friendship, far above
 The course of nature, or his tender age ; 15
 Whose looks could all my bitter griefs assuage ;
 Let his pure soul—ordained seven years to be
 In that frail body, which was part of me—
 Remain my pledge in heaven, as sent to show
 How to this port at every step I go. 20

SIR J. BEAUMONT.

ON AN INFANT DYING AS SOON AS BORN

I SAW where in the shroud did lurk
 A curious frame of Nature's work.
 A floweret crushèd in the bud,
 A nameless piece of Babyhood,
 Was in her cradle-coffin lying ; 5
 Extinet, with scarce the sense of dying ;
 So soon to exchange the imprisoning womb
 For darker closets of the tomb !
 She did but ope an eye, and put
 A clear beam forth, then straight up shut 10
 For the long dark : ne'er more to see
 Through glasses of mortality.
 Riddle of destiny, who can show
 What thy short visit meant, or know
 What thy errand here below ? 15
 Shall we say, that Nature blind
 Checked her hand, and changed her mind,
 Just when she had exactly wrought
 A finished pattern without fault ?
 Could she flag, or could she tire, 20
 Or lacked she the Promethean fire
 (With her nine moons' long workings sickened)
 That should thy little limbs have quickened ?
 Limbs so firm, they seemed to assure
 Life of health, and days mature : 25
 Woman's self in miniature !

Limbs so fair, they might supply
 (Themselves now but cold imagery)
 The sculptor to make Beauty by.
 Or did the stern-eyed Fate desery 30
 That babe, or mother, one must die ;
 So in mercy left the stock,
 And cut the branch ; to save the shock
 Of young years widowed ; and the pain,
 When Single State comes back again 35
 To the lone man who, 'rest of wife,
 Thenceforward drags a maimèd life ?
 The economy of Heaven is dark ;
 And wisest clerks have missed the mark,
 Why Human Buds, like this, should fall, 40
 More brief than fly ephemeral,
 That has his day ; while shrivelled crones
 Stiffen with age to stocks and stones ;
 And crabbèd use the conscience sears
 In sinners of an hundred years. 45
 Mother's prattle, mother's kiss,
 Baby fond, thou ne'er wilt miss.
 Rites, which custom does impose,
 Silver bells and baby clothes ;
 Coral redder than those lips, 50
 Which pale death did late eclipse ;
 Music framed for infants' glee,
 Whistle never tuned for thee ;
 Though thou want'st not, thou shalt have them,
 Loving hearts were they which gave them. 55

Let not one be missing ; nurse,
 See them laid upon the hearse
 Of infant slain by doom perverse.
 Why should kings and nobles have
 Pictured trophies to their grave ;                   60
 And we, churls, to thee deny
 Thy pretty toys with thee to lie,
 A more harmless vanity ?

C. LAMB.

MARGARET LOVE PEACOCK

LONG night succeeds thy little day ;
 O blighted blossom ! can it be,
 That this grey stone and grassy clay
 Have closed our anxious care of thee ?
 The half-formed speech of artless thought,   5
 That spoke a mind beyond thy years ;
 The song, the dance, by nature taught ;
 The sunny smiles, the transient tears ;
 The symmetry of face and form,
 The eye with light and life replete ;           10
 The little heart so fondly warm ;
 The voice so musically sweet—
 These lost to hope, in memory yet
 Around the hearts that loved thee cling,
 Shadowing, with long and vain regret,       15
 The too fair promise of thy spring.

T. L. PEACOCK.

A CHILD'S GRAVE AT FLORENCE

A. A. E. C. BORN JULY 1848. DIED NOVEMBER
1849

OF English blood, of Tusean birth, . .

What country should we give her?
Instead of any on the earth,
The civic Heavens receive her.

And here, among the English tombs, 5
In Tusean ground we lay her,
While the blue Tusean sky endomes
Our English words of prayer.

A little child!—how long she lived,
By months, not years, is reckoned: 10
Born in one July, she survived
Alone to see a second.

Bright-featured, as the July sun
Her little face still played in,
And splendours, with her birth begun, 15
Had had no time for fading.

So, LILY, from those July hours,
No wonder we should call her;
She looked such kinship to the flowers,
Was but a little taller. 20

A Tusean Lily,—only white,
As Dante, in abhorrence
Of red corruption, wished aright
The lilies of his Florence.

We could not wish her whiter,—her 25
 Who perfumed with pure blossom
 The house!—a lovely thing to wear
 Upon a mother's bosom!

This July creature thought perhaps
 Our speech not worth assuming; 30
 She sate upon her parents' laps,
 And mimicked the gnat's humming;
 Said 'father', 'mother'—then, left off,
 For tongues celestial, fitter;
 Her hair had grown just long enough 35
 To catch heaven's jasper-glitter.

Babes! Love could always hear and see
 Behind the cloud that hid them.
 'Let little children come to Me,
 And do not thou forbid them.' 40

So, unforbidding, have we met,
 And gently here have laid her,
 Though winter is no time to get
 The flowers that should o'erspread her.

We should bring pansies quick with spring, 45
 Rose, violet, daffodilly,
 And also, above everything,
 White lilies for our Lily.

Nay, more than flowers, this grave exacts,—
 Glad, grateful attestations 50
 Of her sweet eyes and pretty acts,
 With calm renunciations.

Her very mother with light feet
Should leave the place too earthy,
Saying, 'The angels have thee, Sweet, 55
Because we are not worthy.'

But winter kills the orange buds,
The gardens in the frost are,
And all the heart dissolves in floods,
Remembering we have lost her ! 60

Poor earth, poor heart,—too weak, too weak,
To miss the July shining !
Poor heart !—what bitter words we speak
When God speaks of resigning !

Sustain this heart in us that faints, 65
Thou God, the self-existent !
We catch up wild at parting saints,
And feel Thy Heaven too distant.

The wind that swept them out of sin
Has ruffled all our vesture : 70
On the shut door that let them in,
We beat with frantic gesture,—

To us, us also—open straight !
The outer life is chilly—
Are we too, like the earth, to wait 75
Till next year for our Lily ?

—Oh, my own baby on my knees,
My leaping, dimpled treasure,
At every word I write like these,
Clasped close, with stronger pressure ! 80

Too well my own heart understands,—

At every word beats fuller—

My little feet, my little hands,

And hair of Lily's colour!

—But God gives patience, Love learns strength,

And Faith remembers promise,

86

And Hope itself can smile at length

On other hopes gone from us.

Love, strong as Death, shall conquer Death,

Through struggle, made more glorious.

90

This mother stills her sobbing breath,

Renouncing, yet victorious.

Arms, empty of her child, she lifts,

With spirit unbereaven,—

'God will not all take back His gifts;

95

My Lily's mine in heaven!

'Still mine! maternal rights serene

Not given to another!

The crystal bars shine faint between

The souls of child and mother.

100

'Meanwhile,' the mother cries, 'content!

Our love was well divided.

Its sweetness following where she went,

Its anguish stayed where I did.

'Well done of God, to halve the lot,

105

And give her all the sweetness;

To us, the empty room and cot,—

To her, the Heaven's completeness.

' To us, this grave—to her, the rows
 The mystic palm-trees spring in ;      110
 To us, the silence in the house,—
 To her, the choral singing.

· For her, to gladden in God's view,—
 For us, to hope and bear on !—
 Grow, Lily, in thy garden new      115
 Beside the Rose of Sharon.

Grow fast in heaven, sweet Lily clipped,
 In love more calm than this is,—
 And may the angels dewy-lipped
 Remind thee of our kisses !      120

' While none shall tell thee of our tears,
 These human tears now falling,
 Till, after a few patient years,
 One home shall take us all in.

' Child, father, mother—who, left out ?      125
 Not mother, and not father !—
 And when, our dying couch about,
 The natural mists shall gather,

Some smiling angel close shall stand
 In old Correggio's fashion,      130
 And bear a LILY in his hand,
 For death's ANNUNCIATION.'

E. B. BROWNING.

CHILD OF A DAY

CHILD of a day, thou knowest not
 The tears that overflow thine urn,
 The gushing eyes that read thy lot,
 Nor, if thou knewest, couldst return !
 And why the wish ? the pure and blest      5
 Watch like thy mother o'er thy sleep.
 O peaceful night ! O envied rest !
 Thou wilt not ever see her weep.

W. S. LANDOR.

THREE YEARS SHE GREW

THREE years she grew in sun and shower,
 Then Nature said, ' A lovelier flower
 On earth was never sown ;
 This Child I to myself will take ;
 She shall be mine, and I will make      5
 A Lady of my own.

' Myself will to my darling be
 Both law and impulse : and with me
 The Girl, in rock and plain,
 In earth and heaven, in glade and bower,      10
 Shall feel an overseeing power
 To kindle or restrain.

' She shall be sportive as the fawn
 That wild with glee across the lawn
 Or up the mountain springs ;      15

And hers shall be the breathing balm,
And hers the silence and the calm
Of mute insensate things.

‘The floating clouds their state shall lend
To her; for her the willow bend;                   20
Nor shall she fail to see
Even in the motions of the storm
Grace that shall mould the maiden’s form
By silent sympathy.

‘The stars of midnight shall be dear                   25
To her; and she shall lean her ear
In many a secret place
Where rivulets dance their wayward round,
And beauty born of murmuring sound
Shall pass into her face,                                   30

‘And vital feelings of delight
Shall rear her form to stately height,
Her virgin bosom swell;
Such thoughts to Lucey I will give
While she and I together live                           35
Here in this happy dell.’

Thus Nature spake—The work was done—
How soon my Lucey’s race was run!
She died, and left to me
This heath, this calm, and quiet scene;                   40
The memory of what has been,
And never more will be.

W. WORDSWORTH.

TO MONICA THOUGHT DYING

You, O the piteous you !
 Who all the long night through Anticipatedly
 Disclose yourself to me
 Already in the ways 5
 Beyond our human comfortable days ;
 How can you deem what Death
 Impitiably saith
 To me, who listening wake
 For your poor sake ? 10
 When a grown woman dies
 You know we think unceasingly
 What things she said, how sweet, how wise ;
 And these do make our misery.
 But you were (you to me 15
 The dead anticipatedly !)
 You—eleven years, was 't not, or so ?—
 Were just a child, you know ;
 And so you never said
 Things sweet immeditatably and wise 20
 To interdict from closure my wet eyes :
 But foolish things, my dead, my dead !
 Little and laughable,
 Your age that fitted well.
 And was it such things all unmemorable, 25
 Was it such things could make
 Me sob all night for your implacable sake ?

Yet, as you said to me,
 In pretty make-believe of revelry,
 So the night long said Death 30
 With his magniloquent breath;
 (And that remembered laughter,
 Which in our daily uses followed after,
 Was all untuned to pity and to awe :)
 ' A cup of chocolate, 35
One farthing is the rate,
You drink it through a straw.'

How could I know, how know
 Those laughing words when drenched with sobbing so ?

Another voice than yours, than yours, he hath.
 My dear, was 't worth his breath, 41
 His mighty utterance ?—yet he saith, and saith !
 This dreadful Death to his own dreadfulness
 Doth dreadful wrong,
 This dreadful childish babble on his tongue. 45
 That iron tongue made to speak sentences,
 And wisdom insupportably complete,
 Why should it only say the long night through,
 In mimicry of you—
 ' A cup of chocolate, 50
One farthing is the rate,
You drink it through a straw, a straw, a straw !'

Oh, of all sentences,
 Piercingly incomplete !
 Why did you teach that fatal mouth to draw, 55
 Child, impermissible awe,
 From your old trivialness ?
 Why have you done me this
 Most unsustainable wrong,
 And into Death's control 60
 Betrayed the secret places of my soul ?—
 Teaching him that his lips,
 Uttering their native earthquake and eclipse,
 Could never so avail
 To rend from hem to hem the ultimate veil 65
 Of this most desolate
 Spirit, and leave it stripped and desecrate,—
 Nay, never so have wrung
 From eyes and speech weakness unmanned, un-meet,
 As when his terrible dotage to repeat 70
 Its little lesson learneth at your feet ;
 As when he sits among
 His sepulchres, to play
 With broken toys your hand has cast away,
 With derelict trinkets of the darling young. 75
 Why have you taught—that he might so complete
 His awful panoply
 From your cast playthings—why,
 This dreadful childish babble to his tongue,
 Dreadful and sweet ? 80

WE ARE SEVEN

—A SIMPLE Child,
That lightly draws its breath,
And feels its life in every limb,
What should it know of death ?

I met a little cottage Girl : 5
She was eight years old, she said ;
Her hair was thick with many a curl
That clustered round her head.

She had a rustic, woodland air
And she was wildly clad : 10
Her eyes were fair, and very fair ;
—Her beauty made me glad.

‘ Sisters and brothers, little maid,
How many may you be ? ’
‘ How many ? Seven in all,’ she said, 15
And wondering looked at me.

‘ And where are they ? I pray you tell.’
She answered, ‘ Seven are we ;
And two of us at Conway dwell,
And two are gone to sea. 20

‘ Two of us in the church-yard lie,
My sister and my brother ;
And, in the church-yard cottage, I
Dwell near them with my mother.’

' You say that two at Conway dwell, 25
And two are gone to sea,
Yet ye are seven ! I pray you tell,
Sweet Maid, how this may be.'

Then did the little Maid reply,
' Seven boys and girls are we ; 30
Two of us in the church-yard lie,
Beneath the church-yard tree.'

' You run about, my little Maid,
Your limbs they are alive ;
If two are in the church-yard laid, 35
Then ye are only five.'

' Their graves are green, they may be seen,'
The little Maid replied,
' Twelve steps or more from my mother's door,
And they are side by side. 40

' My stockings there I often knit,
My kerchief there I hem ;
And there upon the ground I sit,
And sing a song to them.

' And often after sun-set, Sir, 45
When it is light and fair,
I take my little porringer,
And eat my supper there.

‘The first that died was sister Jane ;
In bed she moaning lay, 50
Till God released her of her pain ;
And then she went away.

‘So in the church-yard she was laid ;
And, when the grass was dry,
Together round her grave we played, 55
My brother John and I.

‘And when the ground was white with snow,
And I could run and slide,
My brother John was forced to go,
And he lies by her side.’ 60

‘How many are you, then,’ said I,
‘If they two are in heaven ?’
Quick was the little Maid’s reply,
‘O Master ! we are seven.’

‘But they are dead ; those two are dead ! 65
Their spirits are in heaven !’
’Twas throwing words away ; for still
The little Maid would have her will,
And said, ‘Nay, we are seven !’

W. WORDSWORTH.

MATERNITY

ONE wept whose only child was dead,
 New-born, ten years ago.
 Weep not ; he is in bliss,' they said.
 She answered, ' Even so.

Ten years ago was born in pain                    5
 A child, not now forlorn.
 But oh, ten years ago, in vain,
 A mother, a mother was born.'

THE CRADLE

How steadfastly she'd worked at it !
 How lovingly had drest
 With all her would-be mother's wit
 That little rosy nest !

How lovingly she'd hung on it !—                    5
 It sometimes seemed, she said,
 There lay beneath its coverlet
 A little sleeping head.

He came at last, the tiny guest,
 Ere bleak December fled ;                            10
 That rosy nest he never prest . . .
 Her coffin was his bed.

A. DOBSON.

THE MOTHERLESS CHILD

THE zun 'd a-zet back t' other night,
 But in the zettèn pleäce
 The clouds, a-reddened by his light,
 Still glow'd avore my feäce.
 An' I've a-lost my Meäry's smile, 5
 I thought ; but still I have her chile,
 Zoo like her, that my eyes can treäce
 The mother's in her daughter's feäce.
 O little feäce so near to me,
 An' like thy mother's gone ; why need I zay, 10
 Sweet night cloud, wi' the glow o' my lost day,
 Thy looks be always dear to me !

The zun 'd a-zet another night ;
 But, by the moon on high,
 He still did zend us back his light 15
 Below a ewolder sky.
 My Meäry's in a better land
 I thought, but still her chile's at hand,
 An' in her chile she'll zend me on.
 Her love, though she herself's a-gonc. 20
 O little chile so near to me,
 An' like thy mother gone ; why need I zay,
 Sweet moon, the messenger vrom my lost day,
 Thy looks be always dear to me.

W. BARNES.

THE MOTHER'S DREAM

I'D a dream to-night
As I fell asleep,
Oh ! the touching sight
Makes me still to weep :
Of my little lad, 5
Gone to leave me sad,
Aye, the child I had,
But was not to keep.

As in heaven high,
I my child did seek, 10
There, in train, came by Children fair and meek,
Each in lily white,
With a lamp alight ;
Each was clear to sight, 15
But they did not speak.

Then, a little sad,
Came my child in turn,
But the lamp he had,
Oh ! it did not burn ; 20
He, to clear my doubt,
Said, half turned about,
' Your tears put it out ;
Mother, never mourn.'

W. BARNES.

TO A CHILD IN HEAVEN

I CARE not, though it be
 By the preciser sort thought Popery ;
 We poets can a licence show
 For everything we do :
 Hear then, my little saint,—I'll pray to thee. 5

If now thy happy mind
 Amidst its various joys can leisure find
 T' attend to anything so low
 As what I say or do,
 Regard, and be what thou wast ever—kind. 10

Let not the blest above
 Engross thee quite, but sometimes hither rove :
 Fain would I thy sweet image see,
 And sit and talk with thee ;
 Nor is it curiosity, but love. 15

Ah, what delight 'twould be
 Wouldst thou sometimes by stealth converse with me!
 How should I thy sweet commeree prize,
 And other joys despise !
 Come, then—I ne'er was yet denied by thee. 20

I would not long detain
 Thy soul from bliss, nor keep thee here in pain ;
 Nor should thy fellow-saints e'er know
 Of thy escape below :
 Before thou'rt missed, thou shouldst return again. 25

Sure, Heaven must needs thy love
 As well as other qualities improve !
 Come then, and recreate my sight
 With rays of thy pure light :
 'Twill cheer my eyes more than the lamps above. 30

But if Fate's so severe
 As to confine thee to thy blissful sphere,
 (And by thy absence I shall know Whether thy state be so,)
 Live happy : but be mindful of me there. 35

J. NORRIS.

HOME THEY BROUGHT HER WARRIOR DEAD

HOME they brought her warrior dead :
 She nor swooned, nor uttered cry :
 All her maidens, watching, said,
 ' She must weep or she will die.'

Then they praised him, soft and low, 5
 Called him worthy to be loved,
 Truest friend and noblest foe ;
 Yet she neither spoke nor moved.

Stole a maiden from her place ;
 Lightly to the warrior stept, 10
 Took the face-cloth from the face ;
 Yet she neither moved nor wept.

Rose a nurse of ninety years,
 Set his child upon her knee—
 Like summer tempest came her tears— 15
 ‘ Sweet my child, I live for thee.’

LORD TENNYSON.

AS THROUGH THE LAND

As through the land at eve we went,
 And plucked the ripened ears,
 We fell out, my wife and I,
 O we fell out I know not why,
 And kissed again with tears. 5
 And blessings on the falling out
 That all the more endears,
 When we fall out with those we love
 And kiss again with tears !
 For when we came where lies the child 10
 We lost in other years,
 There above the little grave,
 O there above the little grave,
 We kissed again with tears.

LORD TENNYSON.

She will not come though you call all day.
Come away, come away.

Children dear, was it yesterday 30
We heard the sweet bells over the bay ?
In the caverns where we lay,
Through the surf and through the swell,
The far-off sound of a silver bell ?
Sand-strewn caverns, cool and deep, 35
Where the winds are all asleep ;
Where the spent lights quiver and gleam ;
Where the salt weed sways in the stream ;
Where the sea-beasts ranged all round
Feed in the ooze of their pasture-ground ; 40
Where the sea-snakes coil and twine,
Dry their mail and bask in the brine ;
Where great whales come sailing by,
Sail and sail, with unshut eye,
Round the world for ever and ay ? 45
When did music come this way ?
Children dear, was it yesterday ?

Children dear, was it yesterday
(Call yet once) that she went away ?
Once she sate with you and me, 50
On a red gold throne in the heart of the sea,
And the youngest sate on her knee.
She combed its bright hair, and she tended it well,
When down swung the sound of the far-off bell.
She sighed, she looked up through the clear green sea.
She said ; ' I must go, for my kinsfolk pray 56

In the little grey church on the shore to-day.
 'Twill be Easter-time in the world—ah me !
 And I lose my poor soul, Merman, here with thee.'
 I said ; ' Go up, dear heart, through the waves ;
 Say thy prayer, and come back to the kind sea-
       caves.' 61
 She smiled, she went up through the surf in the bay.
 Children dear, was it yesterday ?

Children dear, were we long alone ?
 ' The sea grows stormy, the little ones moan. 65
 Long prayers,' I said, ' in the world they say. [bay.
 Come,' I said, and we rose through the surf in the
 We went up the beach, by the sandy down [town.
 Where the sea-stocks bloom, to the white-walled
 Through the narrow paved streets, where all was still,
 To the little grey church on the windy hill. 71
 From the church came a murmur of folk at their prayers,
 But we stood without in the cold blowing airs.
 We climbed on the graves, on the stones, worn with rains, [panes.
 And we gazed up the aisle through the small leaded
 She sate by the pillar ; we saw her clear : 76
 ' Margaret, hist ! come quick, we are here.
 Dear heart,' I said, ' we are long alone.
 'The sea grows stormy, the little ones moan.'
 But, ah, she gave me never a look, 80
 For her eyes were sealed to the holy book.
 Loud prays the priest ; shut stands the door.

Come away, children, call no more.
 Come away, come down, call no more.

Down, down, down, 85
 Down to the depths of the sea.
 She sits at her wheel in the humming town,
 Singing most joyfully.
 Hark, what she sings ; ' O joy, O joy,
 For the humming street, and the child with its toy.
 For the priest, and the bell, and the holy well. 91
 For the wheel where I spun,
 And the blessed light of the sun.'
 And so she sings her fill,
 Singing most joyfully, 95
 Till the shuttle falls from her hand,
 And the whizzing wheel stands still.
 She steals to the window, and looks at the sand ;
 And over the sand at the sea ;
 And her eyes are set in a stare ; 100
 And anon there breaks a sigh,
 And anon there drops a tear,
 From a sorrow-clouded eye,
 And a heart sorrow-laden,
 A long, long sigh, 105
 For the cold strange eyes of a little Mermaiden,
 And the gleam of her golden hair.

Come away, away children.
 Come children, come down.
 The hoarse wind blows colder ; 110

Lights shine in the town.
 She will start from her slumber
 When gusts shake the door ;
 She will hear the winds howling,
 Will hear the waves roar. 115
 We shall see, while above us
 The waves roar and whirl,
 A ceiling of amber,
 A pavement of pearl.
 Singing, ' Here came a mortal, 120
 But faithless was she.
 And alone dwell for ever
 The kings of the sea.'

But, children, at midnight,
 When soft the winds blow ; 125
 When clear falls the moonlight ;
 When spring-tides are low :
 When sweet airs come seaward
 From heaths starred with broom ;
 And high rocks throw mildly 130
 On the blanched sands a gloom :
 Up the still, glistening beaches,
 Up the creeks we will hie ;
 Over banks of bright seaweed
 The ebb-tide leaves dry. 135
 We will gaze, from the sand-hills,
 At the white, sleeping town ;
 At the church on the hill-side—
 And then come back down.
 Singing, ' There dwells a loved one, 140

But cruel is she.
 She left lonely for ever
 The kings of the sea.'

M. ARNOLD.

A LIMBER ELF

A LITTLE child, a limber elf,
 Singing, dancing to itself,
 A fairy thing with red round cheeks,
 That always finds, and never seeks,
 Makes such a vision to the sight 5
 As fills a father's eyes with light ;
 And pleasures flow in so thick and fast
 Upon his heart, that he at last
 Must needs express his love's excess
 With words of unmeant bitterness. 10
 Perhaps 'tis pretty to force together
 Thoughts so all unlike each other ;
 To mutter and mock a broken charm,
 To dally with wrong that does no harm.
 Perhaps 'tis tender too and pretty 15
 At each wild word to feel within
 A sweet recoil of love and pity.
 And what, if in a world of sin
 (O sorrow and shame should this be true !)
 Such giddiness of heart and brain 20
 Comes seldom save from rage and pain,
 So talks as it 's most used to do.

S. T. COLERIDGE.

Still as thy shadow must I run,
 When all the shadows fall behind,
 And in the rich seductive sun 15
 Thou to the darker bars art blind.

F. B. T. MONEY-COUTTS.

TO VINCENT CORBET, HIS SON

WHAT I shall leave thee, none can tell,
 But all shall say I wish thee well :
 I wish thee, Vin, before all wealth,
 Both bodily and ghostly health ; 4
 Nor too much wealth nor wit come to thee,
 So much of either may undo thee.
 I wish thee learning not for show,
 Enough for to instruct and know ;
 Not such as gentlemen require
 To prate at table or at fire. 10
 I wish thee all thy mother's graces,
 Thy father's fortunes and his places.
 I wish thee friends, and one at court,
 Not to build on, but support ;
 To keep thee not in doing many 15
 Oppressions, but from suffering any.
 I wish thee peace in all thy ways,
 Nor lazy nor contentious days ;
 And, when thy soul and body part,
 As innocent as now thou art. 20

R. CORBET.

ON A DISTANT PROSPECT OF ETON
COLLEGE

YE distant spires, ye antique towers
 That crown the watery glade,
 Where grateful Science still adores
 Her Henry's holy shade ;
 And ye, that from the stately brow 5
 Of Windsor's heights the expanse below
 Of grove, of lawn, of mead survey,
 Whose turf, whose shade, whose flowers among Wanders the hoary Thames along
 His silver-winding way : 10

Ah happy hills ! ah pleasing shade !
 Ah fields beloved in vain !
 Where once my careless childhood strayed,
 A stranger yet to pain !
 I feel the gales that from ye blow 15
 A momentary bliss bestow,
 As waving fresh their gladsome wing
 My weary soul they seem to soothe,
 And, redolent of joy and youth,
 To breathe a second spring. 20

Say, Father Thames, for thou hast seen
 Full many a sprightly race
 Disporting on thy margent green
 The paths of pleasure trace ;
 Who foremost now delight to cleave 25
 With pliant arm, thy glassy wave ?

The captive linnet which enthal ?
 What idle progeny succeed
 To chase the rolling circle's speed
 Or urge the flying ball ? 30

While some on earnest business bent
 Their murmuring labours ply
 'Gainst graver hours, that bring constraint
 To sweeten liberty :
 Some bold adventurers disdain 35
 The limits of their little reign
 And unknown regions dare descry :
 Still as they run they look behind,
 They hear a voice in every wind,
 And snatch a fearful joy. 40

Gay hope is theirs by fancy fed,
 Less pleasing when possess ;
 The tear forgot as soon as shed,
 The sunshine of the breast :
 Theirs buxom health, of rosy hue, 45
 Wild wit, invention ever new,
 And lively cheer, of vigour born ;
 The thoughtless day, the easy night,
 The spirits pure, the slumbers light
 That fly the approach of morn. 50

Alas ! regardless of their doom
 The little victims play !
 No sense have they of ills to come,
 Nor care beyond to-day :

Yet see how all around them wait 55
 The Ministers of human fate,
 And black Misfortune's baleful train !
 Ah, show them where in ambush stand
 To seize their prey, the murderous band !
 Ah, tell them they are men ! 60

These shall the fury Passions tear,
 The vultures of the mind,
 Disdainful Anger, pallid Fear,
 And Shame that skulks behind ;
 Or pining Love shall waste their youth, 65
 Or Jealousy with rankling tooth
 That inly gnaws the secret heart,
 And Envy wan, and faded Care,
 Grim-visaged comfortless Despair,
 And Sorrow's piercing dart. 70

Ambition this shall tempt to rise,
 Then whirl the wretch from high,
 To bitter Scorn a sacrifice
 And grinning Infamy.
 The stings of Falsehood those shall try, 75
 And hard Unkindness' altered eye,
 That mocks the tear it forced to flow ;
 And keen Remorse with blood defiled,
 And moody Madness laughing wild
 Amid severest woe. 80

Lo, in the vale of years beneath
 A grisly troop are seen,
 The painful family of Death,
 More hideous than their Queen :
 This racks the joints, this fires the veins, 85
 That every labouring sinew strains,
 Those in the deeper vitals rage :
 Lo, Poverty, to fill the band,
 That numbs the soul with icy hand,
 And slow-consuming Age. 90

To each his sufferings : all are men,
 Condemned alike to groan ;
 The tender for another's pain,
 The unfeeling for his own.
 Yet, ah ! why should they know their fate, 95
 Since sorrow never comes too late,
 And happiness too swiftly flies ?
 Thought would destroy their paradise,
 No more ;—where ignorance is bliss,
 'Tis folly to be wise. 100

REPARABO

THE world will rob me of my friends,
 For Time with her conspires ;
 But they shall both to make amends
 Relight my slumbering fires.

For while my comrades pass away 5
 To bow and smirk and gloze,
 Come others, for as short a stay ;
 And dear are these as those.

And who was this ? they ask ; and then
 The loved and lost I praise : 10
 ‘ Like you they frolicked ; they are men ;
 Bless ye my later days.’

Why fret ? the hawks I trained are flown :
 ’Twas Nature bade them range ;
 I could not keep their wings half-grown, 15
 I could not bar the change.

With lattice opened wide I stand
 To watch their eager flight ;
 With broken jesses in my hand
 I muse on their delight. 20

And, oh ! if one with sullied plume
 Should droop in mid career,
 My love makes signals :—‘ There is room,
 O bleeding wanderer, here.’

W. J. CORY.

CHILDHOOD AND HIS VISITORS

ONCE on a time, when sunny May
 Was kissing up the April showers,
 I saw fair Childhood hard at play
 Upon a bank of blushing flowers :
 Happy—he knew not whence or how,— 5
 And smiling,—who could choose but love him ?
 For not more glad than Childhood's brow
 Was the blue heaven that beamed above him.

Old Time, in most appalling wrath,
 That valley's green repose invaded ; 10
 The brooks grew dry upon his path,
 The birds were mute, the lilies faded.
 But Time so swiftly winged his flight,
 In haste a Grecian tomb to batter,
 That Childhood watched his paper kite, 15
 And knew just nothing of the matter.

With curling lip and glancing eye
 Guilt gazed upon the scene a minute ;
 But Childhood's glance of purity
 Had such a holy spell within it, 20
 That the dark demon to the air
 Spread forth again his baffled pinion,
 And hid his envy and despair,
 Self-tortured, in his own dominion.

Then stepped a gloomy phantom up, 25
 Pale, cypress-crowned, Night's awful daughter,
 And proffered him a fearful cup
 Full to the brim of bitter water :

Poor Childhood bade her tell her name ;
 And when the beldame muttered—‘ Sorrow,’ 30
 He said,—‘ Don’t interrupt my game ;
 I’ll taste it, if I must, to-morrow.’

The Muse of Pindus thither came,
 And wooed him with the softest numbers
 That ever scattered wealth and fame 35
 Upon a youthful poet’s slumbers ;
 Though sweet the music of the lay,
 To Childhood it was all a riddle,
 And ‘ Oh,’ he cried, ‘ do send away
 That noisy woman with the fiddle!’ 40

Then Wisdom stole his bat and ball,
 And taught him, with most sage endeavour,
 Why bubbles rise and acorns fall,
 And why no toy may last for ever.
 She talked of all the wondrous laws 45
 Which Nature’s open book discloses,
 And Childhood, ere she made a pause,
 Was fast asleep among the roses.

Sleep on, sleep on ! Oh, Manhood’s dreams
 Are all of earthly pain or pleasure, 50
 Of Glory’s toils, Ambition’s schemes,
 Of cherished love, or hoarded treasure :
 But to the couch where Childhood lies
 A more delicious trance is given,
 Lit up by rays from seraph eyes, 55
 And glimpses of remembered Heaven !

A FABLE FOR FIVE YEARS OLD

THE BOY AND HIS TOP

A LITTLE boy had bought a top,
 The best in all the toyman's shop ;
 He made a whip with good eel's skin,
 He lashed the top and made it spin ;
 All the children within call, 5
 And the servants, one and all,
 Stood round to see it and admire.
 At last the top began to tire ;
 He cried out, ' Pray, don't whip me, master,
 You whip too hard ; I can't spin faster ; 10
 I can spin quite as well without it.'
 The little boy replied, ' I doubt it ;
 I only whip you for your good.
 You were a foolish lump of wood ;
 By dint of whipping you were raised 15
 To see yourself admired and praised,
 And if I left you, you'd remain
 A foolish lump of wood again.'

EXPLANATION

Whipping sounds a little odd,
 It don't mean whipping with a rod. 20
 It means to teach a boy incessantly,
 Whether by lessons or more pleasantly,
 Every hour and every day,
 By every means, in every way,

By reading, writing, rhyming, talking, 25
 By riding to see sights, and walking :
 If you leave off he drops at once,
 A lumpish, wooden-headed dunce.

J. H. FRERE.

A FAREWELL

My fairest child, I have no song to give you ;
 No lark could pipe to skies so dull and grey :
 Yet, ere we part, one lesson I can leave you
 For every day. 4

Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever ;
 Do noble things, not dream them, all day long :
 And so make life, death, and that vast for-ever
 One grand, sweet song. 8

C. KINGSLEY.

TO A CHILD

WRITTEN IN HER ALBUM

SMALL service is true service while it lasts :
 Of humblest friends, bright creature ! scorn not one :
 The daisy, by the shadow that it casts,
 Protects the lingering dew-drop from the sun.

W. WORDSWORTH.

MY LOST YOUTH

OFTEN I think of the beautiful town
That is seated by the sea ;
Often in thought go up and down
The pleasant streets of that dear old town,
And my youth comes back to me. 5
And a verse of a Lapland song
Is haunting my memory still :
' A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'
I can see the shadowy lines of its trees, 10
And catch in sudden gleams,
The sheen of the far-surrounding seas,
And islands that were the Hesperides
Of all my boyish dreams.
And the burden of that old song, 15
It murmurs and whispers still :
' A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'
I remember the black wharves and the slips,
And the sea-tides tossing free ; 20
And Spanish sailors with bearded lips,
And the beauty and mystery of the ships,
And the magic of the sea.
And the voice of that wayward song
Is singing and saying still : 25
' A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

I remember the bulwarks by the shore,
 And the fort upon the hill ;
 The sunrise gun, with its hollow roar, 30
 The drum-beat repeated o'er and o'er,
 And the bugle wild and shrill.
 And the music of that old song
 Throbs in my memory still :
 ' A boy's will is the wind's will, 35
 And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

I remember the sea-fight far away,
 How it thundered o'er the tide !
 And the dead captains, as they lay
 In their graves, o'erlooking the tranquil bay, 40
 Where they in battle died.
 And the sound of that mournful song
 Goes through me with a thrill :
 ' A boy's will is the wind's will,
 And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

I can see the breezy dome of groves, 46
 The shadows of Deering's Woods ;
 And the friendships old and the early loves
 Come back with a sabbath sound, as of doves
 In quiet neighbourhoods. 50
 And the verse of that sweet old song,
 It flutters and murmurs still :
 ' A boy's will is the wind's will,
 And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

I remember the gleams and glooms that dart 55
Across the schoolboy's brain ;
The song and the silence in the heart,
That in part are prophecies, and in part
Are longings wild and vain.
And the voice of that fitful song 60
Sings on, and is never still :
' A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

There are things of which I may not speak ;
There are dreams that cannot die ; 65
There are thoughts that make the strong heart weak,
And bring a pallor into the cheek,
And a mist before the eye.
And the words of that fatal song
Come over me like a chill : 70
' A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

Strange to me now are the forms I meet
When I visit the dear old town ;
But the native air is pure and sweet, 75
And the trees that o'ershadow each well-known street,
As they balance up and down,
Are singing the beautiful song,
Are sighing and whispering still :
' A boy's will is the wind's will, 80
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

And Deering's Woods are fresh and fair,
 And with joy that is almost pain
 My heart goes back to wander there,
 And among the dreams of the days that were, 85
 I find my lost youth again.
 And the strange and beautiful song,
 The groves are repeating it still :
 ' A boy's will is the wind's will,
 And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.'

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE CHIMNEY SWEEPER

WHEN my mother died I was very young,
 And my father sold me while yet my tongue
 Could scarcely cry 'weep ! 'weep ! 'weep ! 'weep !'
 So your chimneys I sweep, and in soot I sleep. 4

There 's little Tom Daere, who cried when his head,
 That curled like a lamb's back, was shaved : so I said
 ' Hush, Tom ! never mind it, for when your head 's bare
 You know that the soot cannot spoil your white hair.'

And so he was quiet, and that very night,
 As Tom was a-sleeping, he had such a sight !— 10
 That thousands of sweepers, Dick, Joe, Ned, and Jack,
 Were all of them locked up in coffins of black.

And by came an Angel who had a bright key,
 And he opened the coffins and set them all free ;
 Then down a green plain leaping, laughing, they run,
 And wash in a river, and shine in the sun. 16

Then naked and white, all their bags left behind,
 They rise upon clouds and sport in the wind ;
 And the Angel told Tom, if he'd be a good boy,
 He'd have God for his father, and never want joy.

And so Tom awoke ; and we rose in the dark, 21
 And got with our bags and our brushes to work.
 Though the morning was cold, Tom was happy and warm ;
 So if all do their duty they need not fear harm.

W. BLAKE.

THE CRY OF THE CHILDREN

Φεῦ, φεῦ· τί προσδέρκεσθέ μ' ὄμμασιν, τέκνα ;—Medea.

Do ye hear the children weeping, O my brothers,
 Ere the sorrow comes with years ?
 They are leaning their young heads against their mothers,
 And that cannot stop their tears.
 The young lambs are bleating in the meadows, 5
 The young birds are chirping in the nest,
 The young fawns are playing with the shadows,
 The young flowers are blowing toward the west—

But the young, young children, O my brothers,
 They are weeping bitterly! 10
 They are weeping in the playtime of the others,
 In the country of the free.

Do you question the young children in the sorrow,
 Why their tears are falling so?
 The old man may weep for his to-morrow 15
 Which is lost in Long Ago;
 The old tree is leafless in the forest,
 The old year is ending in the frost,
 The old wound, if stricken, is the sorest,
 The old hope is hardest to be lost. 20
 But the young, young children, O my brothers,
 Do you ask them why they stand
 Weeping sore before the bosoms of their mothers,
 In our happy Fatherland?

They look up with their pale and sunken faces,
 And their looks are sad to see, 26
 For the man's hoary anguish draws and presses
 Down the cheeks of infancy.
 'Your old earth,' they say, 'is very dreary;
 Our young feet,' they say, 'are very weak! 30
 Few paces have we taken, yet are weary—
 Our grave-rest is very far to seek.
 Ask the aged why they weep, and not the children;
 For the outside earth is cold;
 And we young ones stand without, in our bewildering,
 And the graves are for the old.' 36

'True,' say the children, 'it may happen
 That we die before our time ;
 Little Alice died last year—her grave is shapen
 Like a snowball, in the rime. 40
 We looked into the pit prepared to take her :
 Was no room for any work in the close clay !
 From the sleep wherein she lieth none will wake her,
 Crying, " Get up, little Alice ! it is day."
 If you listen by that grave, in sun and shower, 45
 With your ear down, little Alice never cries ;
 Could we see her face, be sure we should not know her,
 For the smile has time for growing in her eyes :
 And merry go her moments, lulled and stilled in
 The shroud by the kirk-chime ! 50
 It is good when it happens,' say the children,
 ' That we die before our time.'

And well may the children weep before you !
 They are weary ere they run ; 54
 They have never seen the sunshine, nor the glory
 Which is brighter than the sun.
 They know the grief of man, without its wisdom ;
 They sink in man's despair, without its calm ;
 Are slaves, without the liberty in Christdom, 59
 Are martyrs, by the pang without the palm,—
 Are worn, as if with age, yet unretrievingly
 The harvest of its memories cannot reap,—
 Are orphans of the earthly love and heavenly.
 Let them weep ! let them weep !

They look up, with their pale and sunken faces, 65
 And their look is dread to see,
 For they mind you of their angels in high places,
 With eyes turned on Deity!—
 ‘How long,’ they say, ‘how long, O cruel nation,
 Will you stand, to move the world, on a child’s heart,— 70
 Stifle down with a mailèd heel its palpitation,
 And tread onward to your throne amid the mart ?
 Our blood splashes upward, O gold-heaper,
 And your purple shows your path !
 But the child’s sob in the silence curses deeper 75
 Than the strong man in his wrath.’

E. B. BROWNING.

OH, EARLIER SHALL THE ROSEBUDS BLOW

Oh, earlier shall the rosebuds blow,
 In after years, those happier years,
 And children weep, when we lie low,
 Far fewer tears, far softer tears.

Oh, true shall boyish laughter ring, 5
 Like tinkling chimes, in kinder times ;
 And merrier shall the maiden sing :
 And I not there, and I not there.

Like lightning in the summer night
 Their mirth shall be, so quick and free ; 10
 And oh ! the flash of their delight
 I shall not see, I may not see.

In deeper dream, with wider range,
 Those eyes shall shine, but not on mine :
 Unmoved, unblest, by worldly change, 15
 The dead must rest, the dead shall rest.

W. J. CORY.

THE FALLING OUT OF FAITHFUL FRIENDS

IN going to my naked bed, as one that would have slept,
 I heard a wife sing to her child, that long before had wept.
 She sighèd sore, and sang full sweet to bring the babe
 to rest,
 That would not cease ; but crièd still, in sueking at her breast.
 She was full weary of her watch, and grievèd with her child ; 5
 She rockèd it, and rated it, till that on her it smiled.
 Then did she say, ‘ Now have I found this proverb true to prove,
The falling out of faithful friends, renewing is of love.’

R. EDWARDS.

GOLDEN SLUMBERS KISS YOUR EYES

GOLDEN slumbers kiss your eyes,
 Smiles awake you when you rise.
 Sleep, pretty wantons, do not cry,
 And I will sing a lullaby.
 Rock them, rock them, lullaby. 5

Care is heavy, therefore sleep you.
 You are care, and care must keep you.
 Sleep, pretty wantons, do not cry,
 And I will sing a lullaby.
 Rock them, rock them, lullaby. 10

T. DEKKER.

SEPHESTIA'S SONG TO HER CHILD

WEEP not, my Wanton ! smile upon my knee,
 When thou art old, there 's grief enough for thee.

Mother's wag, pretty boy,
 Father's sorrow, father's joy,
 When thy father first did see 5
 Such a boy by him and me ;
 He was glad ; I was woe ;
 Fortune changèd made him so,
 When he left his pretty boy,
 Last his sorrow, first his joy. 10

Weep not, my Wanton ! smile upon my knee,
When thou art old, there 's grief enough for thee.

Streaming tears that never stint,
Like pearl-drops from a flint,
Fell, by course, from his eyes, 15
That one another's place supplies :
Thus he grieved in every part ;
Tears of blood fell from his heart,
When he left his pretty boy,
Father's sorrow, father's joy. 20

Weep not, my Wanton ! smile upon my knee,
When thou art old, there 's grief enough for thee.

The Wanton smiled ; father wept,
Mother cried, baby leapt ;
More he crowed, more we cried, 25
Nature sorrow could not hide :
He must go, he must kiss,
Child and mother, baby bliss ;
For he left his pretty boy,
Father's sorrow, father's joy. 30

Weep not, my Wanton ! smile upon my knee,
When thou art old, there 's grief enough for thee.

R. GREENE.

A CRADLE SONG

SLEEP! sleep! beauty bright,
 Dreaming o'er the joys of night;
 Sleep! sleep! in thy sleep
 Little sorrows sit and weep.

Sweet Babe, in thy face 5
 Soft desires I can trace,
 Secret joys and secret smiles,
 Little pretty infant wiles.

As thy softest limbs I feel,
 Smiles as of the morning steal 10
 O'er thy cheek, and o'er thy breast
 Where thy little heart does rest.

O! the cunning wiles that creep
 In thy little heart asleep.
 When thy little heart does wake 15
 Then the dreadful lightnings break,

From thy cheek and from thy eye,
 O'er the youthful harvests nigh.
 Infant wiles and infant smiles
 Heaven and Earth of peace beguiles. 20

W. BLAKE.

LULLABY OF AN INFANT CHIEF

O HUSH thee, my babie, thy sire was a knight,
 Thy mother a lady, both lovely and bright ;
 The woods and the glens, from the towers which we see,

They all are belonging, dear babie, to thee.

O ho ro, i ri ri, cadul gu lo, 5
 O ho ro, i ri ri, &c.

O fear not the bugle, though loudly it blows,
 It calls but the warders that guard thy repose ;
 Their bows would be bended, their blades would be red,

Ere the step of a focman drew near to thy bed. 10

O ho ro, i ri ri, &c.

O hush thee, my babie, the time soon will come
 When thy sleep shall be broken by trumpet and drum ;

Then hush thee, my darling, take rest while you may,
 For strife comes with manhood, and waking with day. 15

O ho ro, i ri ri, &c.

SIR W. SCOTT.

WHAT DOES LITTLE BIRDIE SAY

WHAT does little birdie say
 In her nest at peep of day ?
 Let me fly, says little birdie,
 Mother, let me fly away.
 Birdie, rest a little longer, 5
 Till the little wings are stronger.
 So she rests a little longer,
 Then she flies away.

What does little baby say,
 In her bed at peep of day ? 10
 Baby says, like little birdie,
 Let me rise and fly away.
 Baby, sleep a little longer,
 Till the little limbs are stronger.
 If she sleeps a little longer, 15
 Baby too shall fly away.

LORD TENNYSON.

SWEET AND LOW

SWEET and low, sweet and low,
 Wind of the western sea,
 Low, low, breathe and blow,
 Wind of the western sea !
 Over the rolling waters go, 5
 Come from the dying moon, and blow,
 Blow him again to me ;
 While my little one, while my pretty one, sleeps.

Sleep and rest, sleep and rest,
 Father will come to thee soon : 10
 Rest, rest, on mother's breast,
 Father will come to thee soon ;
 Father will come to his babe in the nest,
 Silver sails all out of the west
 Under the silver moon : 15
 Sleep, my little one, sleep, my pretty one, sleep.

LORD TENNYSON.

A LETTER

TO THE HONOURABLE LADY MARGARET CAVENDISH
 HARLEY, WHEN A CHILD

My noble, lovely, little Peggy,
 Let this my first epistle beg ye,
 At dawn of morn, and close of even,
 To lift your heart and hands to Heaven.
 In double beauty say your prayer : 5
 Our Father first,—then Notre Père :

And, dearest child, along the day,
 In everything you do and say,
 Obey and please my lord and lady,
 So God shall love, and angels aid ye. 10
 If to these precepts you attend,
 No second letter need I send,
 And so I rest your constant friend.

M. PRIOR.

BED-TIME

'Tis bed-time; say your hymn, and bid ' Good-night,
 God bless Mamma, Papa, and dear ones all,'
 Your half-shut eyes beneath your eyelids fall,
 Another minute you will shut them quite.
 Yes, I will carry you, put out the light, 5
 And tuck you up, although you are so tall !
 What will you give me, Sleepy One, and call
 My wages, if I settle you all right ?
 I laid her golden curls upon my arm,
 I drew her little feet within my hand, 10
 Her rosy palms were joined in trustful bliss,
 Her heart next mine beat gently, soft and warm ;
 She nestled to me, and, by Love's command,
 Paid me my precious wages—' Baby's kiss '.

F. ERSKINE, EARL OF ROSSLYN.

ISEULT'S CHILDREN

SWEET flower, thy children's eyes
 Are not more innocent than thine.
 But they sleep in sheltered rest,
 Like helpless birds in the warm nest,
 On the castle's southern side ; 5
 Where feebly comes the mournful roar
 Of buffeting wind and surging tide
 Through many a room and corridor.

Full on their window the moon's ray
Makes their chamber as bright as day ; 10
It shines upon the blank white walls,
And on the snowy pillow falls,
And on two angel-heads doth play
Turned to each other :—the eyes closed—
The lashes on the cheeks reposed. 15
Round each sweet brow the cap close-set
Hardly lets peep the golden hair ;
Through the soft-opened lips the air
Scarcely moves the coverlet.
One little wandering arm is thrown 20
At random on the counterpane,
And often the fingers close in haste
As if their baby owner chased
The butterflies again.
This stir they have and this alone ; 25
But else they are so still.
Ah, tired madeaps, you lie still.
But were you at the window now
To look forth on the fairy sight
Of your illumined haunts by night ; 30
To see the park-glades where you play
Far lovelier than they are by day :
To see the sparkle on the eaves,
And upon every giant bough
Of those old oaks, whose wet red leaves 35
Are jewelled with bright drops of rain—

How would your voices run again !
 And far beyond the sparkling trees
 Of the castle park one sees
 The bare heaths spreading, clear as day,      40
 Moor behind moor, far, far away,
 Into the heart of Brittany.
 And here and there, locked by the land,
 Long inlets of smooth glittering sea,
 And many a stretch of watery sand      45
 All shining in the white moon-beams.
 But you see fairer in your dreams.

M. ARNOLD.

TO THE YOUNGER LADY LUCY SYDNEY

WHY came I so untimely forth
 Into a world which, wanting thee,
 Could entertain us with no worth,
 Or shadow of felicity ?
 That time should me so far remove      5
 From that which I was born to love !

Yet, fairest Blossom ! do not slight
 That eye which you may know so soon ;
 The rosy morn resigns her light
 And milder splendours to the noon :      10
 If such thy dawning beauty's power
 Who shall abide its noon-tide hour ?

Hope waits upon the flowery prime ;
 And summer, though it be less gay,
 Yet is not looked on as a time 15
 Of declination or decay ;
 For with a full hand she doth bring
 All that was promised by the spring.

E. WALLER.

CHILD AND MAIDEN

AH, Chloris ! that I now could sit
     As unconcerned as when
 Your infant beauty could beget
     No pleasure, nor no pain !

When I the dawn used to admire, 5
     And praised the coming day,
 I little thought the growing fire
     Must take my rest away.

Your charms in harmless childhood lay,
     Like metals in the mine ; 10
 Age from no face took more away
     Than youth concealed in thine.

But as your charms insensibly
     To their perfection prest,
 Fond love as unperceived did fly, 15
     And in my bosom rest.

My passion with your beauty grew ;
 And Cupid at my heart
 Still, as his mother favoured you,
 Threw a new flaming dart : 20

Each gloried in their wanton part ;
 To make a lover, he Employed the utmost of his art—
 To make a beauty, she.

SIR C. SEDLEY.

TO A CHILD OF QUALITY, FIVE YEARS OLD,
 THE AUTHOR THEN FORTY

LORDS, knights and squires, the numerous band
 That wear the fair Miss Mary's fetters,
 Were summoned by her high command
 To show their passions by their letters.

My pen amongst the rest I took, 5
 Lest those bright eyes that cannot read
 Should dart their kindling fires, and look
 The power they have to be obeyed.

Nor quality, nor reputation,
 Forbids me yet my flame to tell ; 10
 Dear five-years-old befriends my passion,
 And I may write till she can spell.

For, while she makes her silkworms' beds
 With all the tender things I swear ;
 Whilst all the house my passion reads 15
 In papers round her baby's hair ;

She may receive and own my flame,
 For, though the strictest prudes should know it,
 She'll pass for a most virtuous dame,
 And I for an unhappy poet. 20

Then too, alas ! when she shall tear
 The lines some younger rival sends ;
 She'll give me leave to write, I fear,
 And we shall still continue friends.

For, as our different ages move, 25
 'Tis so ordained (would Fate but mend it !)
 That I shall be past making love,
 When she begins to comprehend it.

THE FAIR THIEF

BEFORE the urchin well could go,
 She stole the whiteness of the snow ;
 And more, that whiteness to adorn,
 She stole the blushes of the morn ;
 Stole all the sweetness ether sheds 5
 On primrose buds and violet beds.

Still to reveal her artful wiles
 She stole the Graces' silken smiles :
 She stole Aurora's balmy breath ;
 And pilfered orient pearl for teeth ;                    10
 The cherry, dipped in morning dew,
 Gave moisture to her lips, and hue.

These were her infant spoils, a store ;
 And she in time still pilfered more !
 At twelve, she stole from Cyprus' queen                    15
 Her air and love-commanding mien ;
 Stole Juno's dignity ; and stole
 From Pallas sense to charm the soul.

Apollo's wit was next her prey ;
 Her next the beam that lights the day ;                    20
 She sang ;—amazed, the Sirens heard ;
 And to assert their voice appeared :
 She played ;—the Muses from their hill
 Wondered who thus had stole their skill.

Great Jove approved her crimes and art ;                    25
 And, t'other day, she stole my heart !
 If lovers, Cupid, are thy care,
 Exert thy vengeance on this Fair ;
 To trial bring her stolen charms,
 And let her prison be my arms !                                    30

C. WYNDHAM, EARL OF EGREMONT.

Young men and women, noble and tender,
 Yearn for each other, faith truly plight, 10
 Promise to cherish, comfort and honour ;
 Vow that makes duty one with delight.
 Oh, but the glory, found in no story,
 Radiance of Eden, unquenched by the Fall ;
 Few may remember, none may reveal it, 15
 This the first first-love, the first love of all !

NEWS

NEWS from a foreign country came,
 As if my treasures and my joys lay there ;
 So much it did my heart enflame,
 'Twas wont to call my soul into mine ear ;
 Which thither went to meet 5
 The approaching sweet,
 And on the threshold stood
 To entertain the secret good ;
 It hovered there
 As if 'twould leave mine ear, 10
 And was so eager to embrace
 The expected tidings, as they came,
 That it could change its dwelling-place
 To meet the voice of fame.

What sacred instinct did inspire 15
 My soul in childhood with a hope so strong ?

What secret force moved my desire
To expect my joys beyond the seas, so young?
Felicity I knew
Was out of view, 20
And being here alone,
I thought all happiness was gone
From earth: for this
I longed for absent bliss,
Deeming that sure beyond the seas, 25
Or else in something near at hand
Which I knew not, since naught did please
I knew, my bliss did stand.

But little did the infant dream
That all the treasures of the world were by, 30
And that himself was so the cream
And crown of all which round about did lie.
Yet thus it was! The gem,
The diadem,
The ring enclosing all 35
That stood upon this earthen ball;
The Heavenly Eye
Much wider than the sky,
Wherein they all included were;
The love, the soul, that was the king 40
Made to possess them, did appear
A very little thing!

T. TRAHERNE.

CHILDHOOD

I CANNOT reach it; and my striving eye
Dazzles at it, as at eternity.

Were now that chronicle alive,
Those white designs which children drive,
And the thoughts of each harmless hour, 5
With their content, too, in my power,
Quickly would I make my path even,
And by mere playing go to heaven.

Why should men love
A wolf, more than a lamb or dove? 10
Or choose hell-fire and brimstone streams
Before bright stars and God's own beams?
Who kisseth thorns will hurt his face,
But flowers do both refresh and grace,
And sweetly living—fie on men!— 15
Are, when dead, medicinal then;
If seeing much should make staid eyes,
And long experience should make wise;
Since all that age doth teach is ill,
Why should I not love childhood still? 20
Why, if I see a rock or shelf,
Shall I from thence cast down myself?
Or by complying with the world
From the same precipice be hurled?
Those observations are but foul, 25
Which make me wise to lose my soul.

And yet the practice worldlings call
 Business, and weighty action all,
 Checking the poor child for his play,
 But gravely cast themselves away. 30

Dear, harmless age ! the short, swift span
 Where weeping Virtue parts with man ;
 Where love without lust dwells, and bends
 What way we please without self-ends.

An age of mysteries ! which he 35
 Must live twice that would God's face see ;
 Which angels guard, and with it play,
 Angels ! which foul men drive away.

How do I study now, and scan
 Thee more than e'er I studied man, 40
 And only see through a long night
 Thy edges and thy bordering light !
 O for thy centre and midday !
 For sure that is the narrow way !

H. VAUGHAN.

THE RETREAT

HAPPY those early days, when I
 Shined in my angel-infancy !
 Before I understood this place
 Appointed for my second race,
 Or taught my soul to fancy aught 5
 But a white, celestial thought ;

When yet I had not walked above
 A mile or two from my first love,
 And looking back—at that short space—
 Could see a glimpse of His bright face ; 10
 When on some gilded cloud, or flower,
 My gazing soul would dwell an hour,
 And in those weaker glories spy
 Some shadows of eternity ;
 Before I taught my tongue to wound 15
 My conscience with a sinful sound,
 Or had the black art to dispense
 A several sin to every sense,
 But felt through all this fleshly dress
 Bright shoots of everlastingness. 20

O how I long to travel back,
 And tread again that ancient track !
 That I might once more reach that plain,
 Where first I left my glorious train ;
 From whence the enlightened spirit sees 25
 That shady city of palm-trees.
 But ah ! my soul with too much stay
 Is drunk, and staggers in the way !
 Some men a forward motion love,
 But I by backward steps would move, 30
 And when this dust falls to the urn
 In that state I came return.

II. VAUGHAN.

ODE

INTIMATIONS OF IMMORTALITY FROM RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY CHILDHOOD

The Child is father of the Man ;
 And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.

THERE was a time when meadow, grove, and stream,
 The earth, and every common sight,

To me did seem

Apparelled in celestial light,

The glory and the freshness of a dream. 5

It is not now as it hath been of yore ;—

Turn wheresoe'er I may,

By night or day,

The things which I have seen I now can see no more.

The Rainbow comes and goes, 10

And lovely is the Rose,

The Moon doth with delight

Look round her when the heavens are bare,

Waters on a starry night

Are beautiful and fair ; 15

The sunshine is a glorious birth ;

But yet I know, where'er I go,

That there hath past away a glory from the earth.

Now, while the birds thus sing a joyous song,

And while the young lambs bound 20

As to the tabor's sound,

To me alone there came a thought of grief :
 A timely utterance gave that thought relief,
     And I again am strong : 24
 The cataracts blow their trumpets from the steep ;
 No more shall grief of mine the season wrong ;
 I hear the Echoes through the mountains throng,
 The Winds come to me from the fields of sleep,
     And all the earth is gay ;
         Land and sea 30
     Give themselves up to jollity,
         And with the heart of May
 Doth every Beast keep holiday ;—
     Thou Child of Joy,
 Shout round me, let me hear thy shouts, thou happy
     Shepherd-boy ! 35

Ye blessèd Creatures, I have heard the call
     Ye to each other make ; I see
 The heavens laugh with you in your jubilee ;
     My heart is at your festival,
     My head hath its coronal, 40
 The fullness of your bliss, I feel—I feel it all.
     Oh evil day ! if I were sullen
     While Earth herself is adorning,
         This sweet May-morning,
     And the Children are culling 45
         On every side,
     In a thousand valleys far and wide,
     Fresh flowers ; while the sun shines warm,
 And the Babe leaps up on his Mother's arm :—

I hear, I hear, with joy I hear ! 50

—But there 's a Tree, of many, one,

A single Field which I have looked upon,

Both of them speak of something that is gone :

The Pansy at my feet

Doth the same tale repeat : 55

Whither is fled the visionary gleam ?

Where is it now, the glory and the dream ?

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting :

The Soul that rises with us, our life's Star,

Hath had elsewhere its setting, 60

And cometh from afar :

Not in entire forgetfulness,

And not in utter nakedness,

But trailing clouds of glory do we come

From God, who is our home : 65

Heaven lies about us in our infancy !

Shades of the prison-house begin to close

Upon the growing Boy,

But He beholds the light, and whence it flows,

He sees it in his joy ; 70

The Youth, who daily farther from the east

Must travel, still is Nature's Priest,

And by the vision splendid

Is on his way attended ;

At length the Man perceives it die away, 75

And fade into the light of common day.

Earth fills her lap with pleasures of her own ;
 Yearnings she hath in her own natural kind,
 And, even with something of a Mother's mind,
     And no unworthy aim, 80
     The homely Nurse doth all she can
 To make her Foster-child, her Inmate Man,
     Forget the glories he hath known,
 And that imperial palace whence he came.

Behold the Child among his new-born blisses, 85
 A six years' Darling of a pigmy size !
 See, where 'mid work of his own hand he lies,
 Fretted by sallies of his mother's kisses,
 With light upon him from his father's eyes !
 See, at his feet, some little plan or chart, 90
 Some fragment from his dream of human life,
 Shaped by himself with newly-learnèd art ;
     A wedding or a festival,
     A mourning or a funeral ;
     And this hath now his heart, 95
     And unto this he frames his song :
     Then will he fit his tongue
 To dialogues of business, love, or strife ;
     But it will not be long
     Ere this be thrown aside, 100
     And with new joy and pride
 The little Actor cons another part ;
 Filling from time to time his ' humorous stage '

With all the Persons, down to palsied Age,
 That Life brings with her in her equipage ; 105
     As if his whole vocation
     Were endless imitation.

Thou, whose exterior semblance doth belie
     Thy Soul's immensity ;
 Thou best Philosopher, who yet dost keep 110
 Thy heritage, thou Eye among the blind,
 That, deaf and silent, read'st the eternal deep,
 Haunted for ever by the eternal mind,—
     Mighty Prophet ! Seer blest !
     On whom those truths do rest, 115
 Which we are toiling all our lives to find,
 In darkness lost, the darkness of the grave ;
 Thou, over whom thy Immortality
 Broods like the Day, a Master o'er a Slave,
 A Presence which is not to be put by ; 120
     [To whom the grave
 Is but a lonely bed without the sense or sight
     Of day or the warm light,
 A place of thought where we in waiting lie ;]
 Thou little Child, yet glorious in the might 125
 Of heaven-born freedom on thy being's height,
 Why with such earnest pains dost thou provoke
 The years to bring the inevitable yoke,
 Thus blindly with thy blessedness at strife ? 129
 Full soon thy Soul shall have her earthly freight,
 And custom lie upon thee with a weight,
 Heavy as frost, and deep almost as life !

O joy! that in our embers
 Is something that doth live,
 That nature yet remembers 135
 What was so fugitive!

The thought of our past years in me doth breed
 Perpetual benediction: not indeed
 For that which is most worthy to be blest;
 Delight and liberty, the simple creed 140
 Of Childhood, whether busy or at rest,
 With new-fledged hope still fluttering in his breast:—

Not for these I raise
 The song of thanks and praise;
 But for those obstinate questionings 145
 Of sense and outward things,
 Fallings from us, vanishings;
 Blank misgivings of a Creature
 Moving about in worlds not realised,
 High instincts before which our mortal Nature 150
 Did tremble like a guilty Thing surprised:
 But for those first affections,
 Those shadowy recollections,
 Which, be they what they may,
 Are yet the fountain-light of all our day, 155
 Are yet a master-light of all our seeing;
 Uphold us, cherish, and have power to make
 Our noisy years seem moments in the being
 Of the eternal Silence: truths that wake,
 To perish never; 160
 Which neither listlessness, nor mad endeavour,

Nor Man nor Boy,
Nor all that is at enmity with joy,
Can utterly abolish or destroy !
Hence in a season of calm weather 165
Though inland far we be,
Our Souls have sight of that immortal sea
Which brought us hither,
Can in a moment travel thither,
And see the Children sport upon the shore, 170
And hear the mighty waters rolling evermore.

Then sing, ye Birds, sing, sing a joyous song !
And let the young Lambs bound
As to the tabor's sound !
We in thought will join your throng, 175
Ye that pipe and ye that play,
Ye that through your hearts to-day
Feel the gladness of the May !

What though the radianee which was once so bright
Be now for ever taken from my sight, 180
Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower ;
We will grieve not, rather find
Strength in what remains behind ;
In the primal sympathy 185
Which having been must ever be ;
In the soothing thoughts that spring
Out of human suffering ;
In the faith that looks through death,
In years that bring the philosophic mind. 190

And O, ye Fountains, Meadows, Hills, and Groves,
Forebode not any severing of our loves !

Yet in my heart of hearts I feel your might ;

I only have relinquished one delight

To live beneath your more habitual sway. 195

I love the Brooks which down their channels fret,

Even more than when I tripped lightly as they ;

The innocent brightness of a new-born Day

Is lovely yet ;

The Clouds that gather round the setting sun 200

Do take a sober colouring from an eye

That hath kept watch o'er man's mortality ;

Another race hath been, and other palms are won.

Thanks to the human heart by which we live,

Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, and fears, 205

To me the meanest flower that blows can give

Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

W. WORDSWORTH.

HOW MANY VOICES GAILY SING

How many voices gaily sing,

' O happy morn, O happy spring

Of life !' Meanwhile there comes o'er me

A softer voice from Memory,

And says, ' If loves and hopes have flown 5

With years, think too what griefs are gone !'

W. S. LANDOR.

NOTES

THIS volume opens at the beginning of life, and then are given poems addressed to individual children and some 'parental recollections'; Mrs. Meynell's carol is followed by the reverent playfulness of Herrick and Francis Thompson, and Blake's tribute to the living 'flowers of London town'; then are graces for children; the Laureate's exquisite poem on a dead child introduces elegies and epitaphs, a poem by Thompson, who excelled when writing about children, of almost intolerable pathos, and childhood's philosophy of death as stated in Wordsworth's 'We are seven'; then are poems on the distress suffered by bereaved parents, and the note of parental responsibility is struck. Gray's ode on Eton and its 'little victims' suggests lessons, and in contrast 'The Cry of the Children'; then there are cradle songs, ending with Matthew Arnold's description of Iseult's children; and next are found the tributes of poets of a certain age to youthful and ripening charms; Traherne's observation as to the infant being 'the cream and crown' of all the treasures of the world leads to Vaughan's poems on childhood's 'dear harmless age' and that angel-infaney, trailing the clouds of glory, which Wordsworth enlarged upon in his great ode.

Acknowledgement of permission to reprint copyright poems is given in the notes which follow.

P. 31. Herrick.—Handsel is a gift for luck.

P. 32. Thompson.—From the Collected Works. By kind permission of Mr. Wilfrid Meynell.

P. 34. Crashaw.—These lines are the beginning of 'A Hymn to the Name and Honour of the admirable Saint Teresa', the Spanish reformer of the Carmelites (1505-82).

P. 42. Herrick.—'Paddocks' are frogs.

P. 43. Bridges.—By kind permission of the Poet Laureate and Messrs. Smith, Elder.

P. 44. Jonson.—The following remarkable circumstance relating to the death of Jonson's son is related by Drummond:—'When the King came in England at that time the pest was in London, Jonson, being in the country at Sir Robert Cotton's house with old Camden, saw in a vision his eldest son, then a child and at London, appear unto him with the mark of a bloody cross on his forehead, as if it had been cut with a sword, at which amazed he prayed unto God, and in the morning he came to Mr. Camden's chamber to tell him; who persuaded him it was but an apprehension of his fantasy, at which he should not be dejected; in the mean time comes there letters from his wife of the death of that boy in the plague. He appeared to him, he said, of a manly shape, and of that growth that he thinks he shall be at the resurrection.'

P. 58. Thompson.—By permission of Mr. Wilfrid Meynell.

P. 64. Alice Meynell.—By permission of the author.

P. 64. Dobson.—By permission of the author and Messrs. Kegan Paul.

P. 65. Barnes.—From Poems in the Dorset Dialect.

P. 75. Coleridge.—From 'Christabel.'

P. 76. Money-Coutts.—By kind permission of the author.

P. 77. Corbet.—The author, who was Bishop of Oxford and of Norwich, had called his son after his father, in whose honour Jonson wrote a poem.

P. 82. Cory.—William Johnson, otherwise Cory, was a master at Eton.

P. 87. Longfellow.—The allusion in stanza 5 is to the engagement between the Enterprise and Boxer off the harbour of Portland. The captains were buried side by side in the cemetery on Mountjoy.

P. 91. E. B. Browning.—Seven stanzas are omitted.

P. 95. Edwards.—This is only the first verse.

P. 96. Dekker.—From Patient Grissel.

P. 100. Tennyson.—The first is from 'The Princess'; the second from 'Sea Dreams.'

P. 102. Rosslyn.—Swinburne wrote:—'There are loftier sonnets in the language, there is no lovelier sonnet in the world, than the late Lord Rosslyn's "Bed-time". It gives a very echo to the seat where love is throned—the painless and stainless love of little children.' I regret that it is not possible for me to include one or more of Mr. Swinburne's own poems on children. 'Bed-time' is included by permission of Messrs Blackwood and Sons.

P. 102. Arnold.—From 'Tristram and Iseult.'

P. 113. Vaughan.—This poem is said to have inspired Wordsworth to write the ode which follows it.

P. 115. Wordsworth.—Lines 121–24 were omitted from the edition of 1820 and onward, because condemned by Coleridge.
